SUCCESSFUL BAZAAR.

The bazaar which is now in progress at the Convent Schools, Dominick street, Dublin, will continue till Friday next.

The Rev. M. H. McInerney, O.P., who performed the opening ceremony on Friday evening, said that thirty years ago the house which the Sisters of the Holy Faith now occupied in Dominick street was the Carmelite Academy. Shortly afterwards Father Magennis, now General of the Carmelites, was a professor there. Some years later the place came into the hands of the Sisters of the Holy Faith, and their work had since prospered by leaps and bounds, and had been visibly blessed by God.

They had found it necessary to erect new and spacious class-rooms, and they had done so at a cost of something over £8,000; and the object of the bazaar was to try and pay off as much as possible of the debt which the good Sisters had incurred through the putting up of the new buildings.

The many persons who were present at the bazaar on Friday and Saturday thoroughly enjoyed the numerous and varied attractions.

GOLF.

AMERICAN CHAMPIONSHIP.

One hundred and seventy players took out cards for the first eighteen holes of the qualifying competition for the American Open Amateur Championship over the Brookline course, Mass., on Saturday. The field was thereby reduced to 64, and those who qualified will play another 36 holes today. Thus, thirty-two will qualify for the match play stages.

Robert Gardner led the field with a par 71, W. B. Torrance, the Edinburgh golfer, led the Britishers with 72, while Cyril Tolley, Jesse Guildford and Charles Evans had each 74. Colin Aylmer, John Cavan and William Mackenzie were other British players who had scores below 80. William Bunter took 81. C. Hooman was dangerously near failing to qualify, while R. Wethered and Bernard Darwin were disappointing with 82 each. Wethered's poor score was largely the result of errors in driving.

Amongst the leading scores were:—

Robert Gardner (Stinsdale), 71; M. Greer (Llanerch), 72; W. Torrance (Edinburgh Burgess), 72; Bobby Jones (Atlanta), 73; Sweetser (Siwanoy), 73; T. J. Anderson (Siwanoy), 73; Charles Evans (Edgewater), 74; J. Beadle (Llanerch), 74; Jesse Guildford (Woodland), holder, 74; Cyril Tolley (Royal and Ancient), 74; Aulbach (Scabrorough), 75; Colin Aylmer (Landon), 76; H. Bownes, jun. (Oakmont), 76; Francis Ouimet (Woodland), 76; Thomas Armour (Westchester), 77.

The British entrants' scores were:—J. Cavan (Cochrane Castle), 78; William Mackenzie (Mortonhall), 79; R. Wethered (Royal and Ancient), 82; Bernard Darwin (Woking), 82.

"WORLD'S CHAMPIONSHIP."

HAGEN V. SARAZEN.

Gene Sarazen, the holder of the Open and Professional Championships of the United States, will meet Walter Hagen, the British Open Championship holder, on October 8 and 9. The first half of the 72 holes will be played on the first mentioned date at Pittsburg, and on the following day the game will be completed on the Westchester-Biltmore course at Ryem, New York. Sarazen also announces that arrangements for the match, which have been pending since he won the U.S.A. Open title at Skokie, have definitely been completed.

It will be recalled that last year, when Hutchison had won the British Open Championship, and Barnes had won the United States Open Championship, those players agreed upon a match for the "World's Championship." Both before and after the meeting opinions were expressed as to the advisability, desirability, and righteousness of such a match in the light of the title which was applied to it, but eventually the match was played, and it resulted in a win for Barnes, who was presented with a trophy, "emblematic of the Unofficial World's Championship."

WELSH CHAMPION'S FINE GOLF.

Percy Alliss, the winner of the Welsh Professional Championship on the last two occasions that it was played for, and the professional to the Clyne Club, Swansea, had a remarkable round on the course of the Royal Porthcawl Club, Glamorgan. Playing the better ball of Mrs. Rupert Phillips (twice Welsh lady champion), Mrs. Franklin Thomas (runner-up in the last Welsh Ladies' Championship) and Mrs. Howard Davies, of the Clyne Club, Alliss had the phenomenal score of 64, made up of the following figures:—Out—3 4 4 3 5 3 2 4 3—31. In—3 2 4 4 3 3 5 5 4—33. Total—64. Alliss holed out every putt.

IRISH LADIES' GOLFING UNION.

The competition for the autumn prizes (Dublin District) will take place on September 26th on Rathfarnham links, instead of Malahide links, as previously arranged. Entries close September 23rd with Mrs. Cooke, Club House, Rathfarnham.

GAELIC ATHLETIC PASTIMES.

O'TOOLES WIN EXCITING FINAL.

(BY "PAT'O.")

Early in the second half, when O'Toole's were in arrears a point or two, John Synott trapped the ball half-way up the right wing. Tackled in quick succession by Shanahan, McGurk, and Belman, he dribbled through skilfully, and sent a long shot right across the goal. Maher, racing in from the opposite wing, just got his foot to the ball and volleyed it into the net. This was the deciding factor in yesterday's replay football final at Croke Park, and, incidentally, it was as pretty a piece of football as we have seen for many a day.

The morning was wet and dismal. Rain fell heavily, and the prospects were gloomy when we reached Croke Park. By noon, however, the clouds lifted, and the match was played in good weather. The sod suffered somewhat, and control of the greasy ball was difficult. A big company was in attendance, the new stand was filled, and the sheltered side of the grounds well lined with spectators when Mr. Kirwan had the following teams away at 12.15:—

O'Toole's—P. McDonnell (capt.), J. McDonnell, Gibbons, Robbins, Norris, Grace, Rourke, Maher, Synotts (2), O'Reillys (2), and Carey brothers (3).

St. Mary's—E. Carroll (capt.), Belman, Tuite, Grady, Bradshaw, McGurk, Shanahan, McDonnell, Fitzsimmons, Graham, O'Toole, Healy, Malone, Dixon, and Nugent.

St. Mary's were first to attack. Norris sent them back, and Synott got away at the centre, but good fielding brought St. Mary's upfield again. Their first over was sent across after they had played five minutes, with a fluky wind behind them. Bradshaw, as usual a tower of strength in the Mary's defence, was now prominent. He had good support from Carroll and Grady, but O'Toole's, playing clever football, worked their way through, Maher hitting the side of the net with a low ground shot.

Long exchanges between the backs followed—O'Reilly and Norris on one side against Bradshaw and McGurk on the other. Reilly was efficient, as usual, in pulling down high balls, and getting them away in long sailing punts. From a ruck, in which play was vigorous and determined, a free was placed for P. McDonnell sixty yards out. He drove low to Joseph Synott, who wheeled in possession, and drove over the bar for the opening score. Play brightened. The teams were well matched, and neither side gave or asked for quarter, and strong close tackling was a feature. St. Mary's were playing nippier football at this period. A free to Bradshaw close in was well directed, and the teams were level. Immediately afterwards Carroll, the Mary's captain, brought off a smart save from a free by Synott, and St. Mary's were once more in the attack. Bradshaw had another free placed. Instead of shooting he crossed deftly to Malone. The winger was on the loose, and his fine kick for a point gave St. Mary's the lead. Close determined play continued, without advantage, to half-time, when the score was:—St. Mary's, 2 points; O'Toole's, 1 point.

It was shortly after the opening that Synott led up to Maher's goal described above, and O'Tooles, with a two-point lead and a strengthening breeze behind them, were playing a more spirited game. Their players held their places better, spread out for speedy wing work, and altogether gave an impressive display. Malone, in the meantime, was giving a clever exhibition on the St. Mary's wing, but P. Carey, playing full for O'Toole's, was rarely at fault. His captain, too was playing in improved form at midfield, and beside him Joseph Synott was always in the picture. T. Carey now secured a high ball, and poor St. Mary marking enabled him to shoot a long high point, and give O'Toole's a clear goal lead.

Thenceforward it was a strenuous struggle. St. Mary's fought hard for a score, and Bradshaw raised their hopes with a further point off a free twenty yards out. O'Toole's were, however, the fitter and more skilful team. They deserved more than one score, but Carroll, Bradshaw, and Grady kept a good line intact to the end. Nearing the final whistle St. Mary's made a brave rally, Carey and Norris requiring all their skill to keep their citadel safe. A fine game wound up, as under, in favour of the smarter, better trained, and longer-kicking combination.

O'Toole's—1 goal 2 points.
St. Mary's—3 points.

IRISH BARLEY-GROWING.

NO SHOW THIS YEAR.

At a meeting of the Barley Committee of the Royal Dublin Society, held at Leinster House on Wednesday, the matter of holding a show of malting barley was carefully considered. The Committee felt that, as there was not much prospect of securing either a representative entry or attendance under the existing circumstances, they were reluctantly compelled to recommend that the show should be postponed until more favourable conditions prevailed in the country. It is hoped to revive the show next year. The educational value of such a show is, to a great extent, dissipated if those in whose interests it is run are unable to accord it the support that would be forthcoming in normal times.

The Committee are pleased to know that the lessons learnt as a result of last year's exhibition have been taken to heart by barley-growers generally, who are now keenly alive to the importance of exercising every care and attention in the selection of seed, the method and time of sowing, harvesting and grading of the finished product. It is only by such means that the growing of malting barley will become a paying proposition to those farmers whose land is suitable for its cultivation.

ELDERLY ROMANCE.

A wedding between Councillor Henry Joseph Van Trump, a prominent Somerset manufacturer, and four times Mayor of Taunton, and Miss Nellie Beatrice Mockridge, the forewoman of his Taunton collar factory, took place at the Taunton Register Office on Saturday. Mr. Van Trump is seventy-seven years old, and Miss Mockridge thirty-nine. Mr. Van Trump's first wife died in March, after fifty-three years' wedded life. She received a golden wedding presentation from two thousand friends when her husband was made a freeman of the borough during his second mayoralty.

WAR AND ECONOMIC LIFE.

THIS WEEK'S MEETING OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Writing on the forthcoming meeting of the British Association, a special correspondent of the Observer says that the subjects on which papers will be read range over a large variety of fields.

The present position of Darwinism will be debated both by the zoologists and the botanists, and quite a lively discussion is anticipated on a paper by Dr. J. C. Willis, which will assert the inadequacy of the theory of natural selection to account for the observed facts of geographical distribution and evolution.

In the chemistry section, Sir William Bragg will explain his latest discoveries concerning the structure of crystals, and in this department special attention will be devoted to chemistry as applied to industries, particularly with reference to the modern processes of the soap, oil, and cement industries, which are intimately connected with the life of Hull.

The tides of the North Sea, the steady loss—amounting to some four yards per annum—of the Holderness coast of Yorkshire by water erosion, the application of biology to the fishing industry, and the scientific investigation of industrial psychology will be dealt with in a popular manner, with particular reference to local conditions. This popularising of science has been a marked feature of the meetings of the British Association in the last dozen years, and it has done much to widen the sphere of its influence.

Several papers to be read in the section of economic science and statistics will deal with the marked influence of the war upon the economic life of the people, and these will include one by Mr. J. L. Cohen on the future of unemployment insurance, one by Miss Anne Ashley, a well-known social worker in Scotland, on the relation to the able-bodied of the English and Scottish Poor Laws; and a third by Professor A. L. Bowley on post-war prices, both wholesale and retail.

Meteorologists will be well to the fore, and a demonstration will be given by the Air Ministry with the idea of showing how the wireless weather data radiated every day by the Ministry may be easily intercepted and applied by private individuals. For this purpose, a wireless installation will be placed in the Guildhall, which will enable the whole process of drawing up weather maps and deducing from them the probable weather to be followed and understood.

CHARM OF OLD FURNITURE.

WOMAN'S WORK AS A HOME-MAKER.

Although the decorative charm found in some of the modern furniture tempts one to forsake its ancestors, the more discriminating observers cannot but see that the very best of these modern pieces is inspired, if not actually adapted, from other times which were more prolific in charming and original designs than our own.

However attractive modern furniture may be, it can never wholly take the place of the lovely old things, not only because the designs of the older periods are more satisfying to the eye, but also they have a mellowness and dignity that only time can bring. Whether they are given a place in one's home because of their artistic value, or simply by reason of inheritance as a proof of some forefathers' good taste, the treasured pieces of furniture and objets d'art of days gone by bring to the rooms that they grace an atmosphere and an individuality which is almost impossible to imitate.

Too frequently nowadays is a woman's fancy caught and held by some trivial bit of mediocre modern furnishing or ornament, while she scorns the simple charm of a rare old piece as being out of date.

DRESSING TABLES.

Take, for instance, that most hideous of objects, the modern dressing-table, with its tawdry little handles and meaningless carving. Why should one not substitute the delightful little table of the eighteenth century, set on slim and shapely legs? Behind it gleams one of those beautiful French mirrors which seem to enhance all the good points of the "poudreuse" who is lucky enough to sit before it. Quaint Staffordshire figurines or antique crystal candlesticks would be an ideal finish to such a toilet table.

No woman who devotes herself to the difficult but enthralling task of creating a home is ever happier than when she chances upon something new and yet quaintly old-world in the way of table appointments. For in nothing is change and freshness so welcome and so much appreciated, and the woman of originality loves to light upon some genuine or worthily imitation piece of old china, glass, or silver which will adorn her table with a charm and dignity impossible to achieve with the more showy examples of modern bric-a-brac.

Painted glassware makes a charming addition to a table, and is usually most graceful in design and rich in colouring.

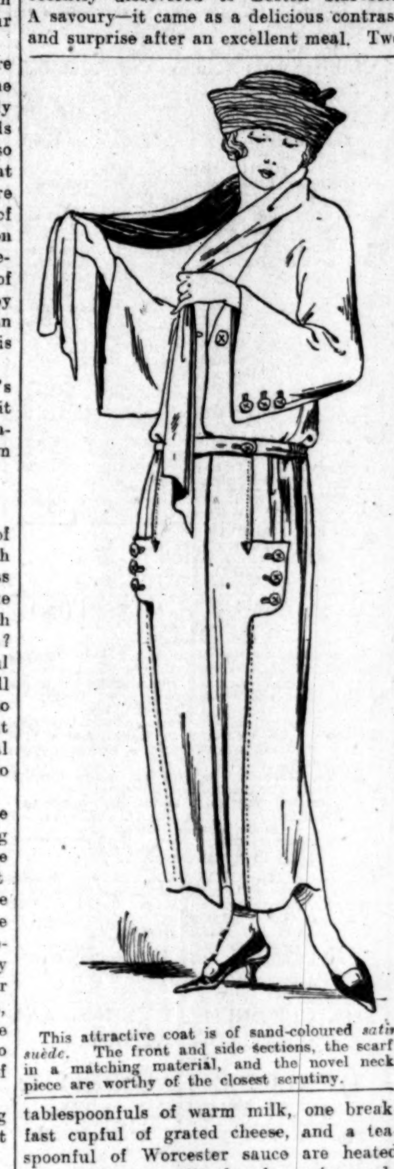

A slender laquer lamp shedding its light from a pagoda shade in reds and blues upon a group of exotic yellow canaries was a recently seen arrangement that called forth much admiration, while an exquisitely fashioned Harlequin wooing with tender grace a dainty Columbine was another example of original thought.

Such beautiful old-world ornaments as these, in conjunction with a few well chosen pieces of furniture, will create an atmosphere of good taste and dignity in a house of the most unpretentious order.

A DAINTY DISH.

Speaking of tables, one thinks of things to set thereon, and a dainty dish which I recently discovered is Boston Rarebit. A savoury—it came as a delicious contrast and surprise after an excellent meal. Two tablespoonfuls of warm milk, one breakfast cupful of grated cheese, and a teaspoonful of Worcester sauce are heated over a slow fire till the cheese is nearly melted. Then two teaspoonfuls of chutney and two well-beaten eggs are added, the mixture being whisked over a gentle heat until it becomes a soft, creamy, lightly-set mass. It is then seasoned and placed on croutons of hot toast, which have been well buttered and spread with anchovy paste. This, fellow-gourmets, was a perfect ending to an excellent dinner.

ELIZABETH KENT.

This attractive coat is of sand-coloured satin suède. The front and side sections, the scarf, in a matching material, and the novel neck-piece are worthy of the closest scrutiny.

FASHION NOTES FROM PARIS.

THE OPEN ROAD.

MOTORING A LA MODE.

It seems just about impossible to go very far in this spinning twentieth century without being an enthusiastic motorist. Everybody motors. Everybody talks about motoring. One certainly cannot qualify for great popularity at tea-fights, dinner dances, or theatre parties if one is not ready to chatter merrily about roads, carburetters, chauffeurs, and blue books. The sound of these simple, poetic words is as the music of the spheres to the yearning motorists. The woman who cannot converse easily upon such enthralling topics is considered positively archaic. One thinks of her as belonging to the period of spinning wheels.

Motoring is really the pastime of the French nation, and summer is the pass-time of all motorists. Roads and wayside inns and resorts, and the cars themselves, have all been perfected to such a degree that there no longer seems any aching void to be filled. One can see France, from north to south and from east to west, with all the comforts of home in one's own car, and she who steps from her motor may look as though she came from a massage and a henna shampoo.

MOTOR "TOGS."

And then there is the soul-satisfying matter of motor "togs." Past, long past, is the time when one eclipsed a fatal gift of beauty under a sack-like duster and a sort of boudoir cap. There is no longer any necessity for looking like a charter member of the Klu-Klux Klan. Nimble wits have devised wonderful motor hats that would have made Cleopatra weak with envy. These bits of headgear capture all fly-away curls and wisps in the most becoming fashion. Some of them have pert brims to shadow wicked glances, and others have no brims at all to reveal glances equally wicked.

Some of them—for Paris has an eye for the fair motorist—fly little veils to protect a rose-petal skin and to keep teasing winds away. Or, if one likes, one can tie on demurely one of these I-was-made-for-flirting scarves, or one can slip into the soft attractive motor wraps that are as far away from the oblong duster, dear to the good old days, as heaven is supposed to be from a frivolous world! If one makes up one's mind—pouf! There is absolutely nothing one cannot do while motoring. And that, of course, is saying a lot.

Naturally enough, motor liveries are not to be passed over lightly. Thomas or John or Henry must be smartly groomed and attired. He, too, must be made a thing of beauty. Smart liveries make smart chauffeurs, and, fortunately, he who drives your car can be the pink of perfection, or rather the blue, maroon, or Oxford grey of perfection. Liveries now are so ultra smart that they may well be called the perfectly good reason why chauffeurs leave a happy home.

Some of my pretty compatriots wearing their hats—just anyhow. . . Whisps behind, my dears, veils with untidy dangling ends, or hats that reach to the bridge of the nose, and then some. Horrors! And when you compare the exquisite chic with which a Frenchwoman poses her hat on her dear little smooth head—as if it grew there! Veil perfect, pins perfect, colour and line something to dream about. Some women do, indeed, seem not so much to have achieved their hats as to have had them literally thrust upon them. Some time ago the English woman's fiercely businesslike shoes and useful-looking ankles were the staple joke in the Continental comic papers. Now her legs are a thing of beauty and a joy for ever . . . if you see what I mean.

HATS.

Hats are fascinating, whether large or small. The wide-brimmed hat, trimmed with flowers, is most becoming to young faces. So is the pert and spiky little toque, with its darting trimmings and its gay little flower wreaths. They all look easy to wear, but they are not so easy as they look. When worn by girls with rounded cheeks and soft curls of hair in front of the ears most of the modern hats are becoming; but they need managing for tired faces, and faces that are not prettily framed in hair.

For older women there are draped toques, to be worn with long embroidered veils. There are hats with trimmings and without. There are flower-trimmings and ribbon-trimmings, but the essential points are that a hat should be good in line and well worn.

LEATHER TAILOR-MADES.

One of the latest autumn novelties is the tailor suit made of leather, and they are almost always in brown—frankly, astonishingly brown. Also, are they stamped with gold or silver patterns, and remind one of a handsome leather handbag. These new tailleurs are extremely well cut and in simple fashion, and are the most perfect of their kind. Worn with little waistcoats of cloqué cloisonné, they are just the very thing for uncertain autumn weather—with a smart little hat, bright in colour for preference, they look summer-like, and yet can meet a wintry storm.

AUTUMN BEVERAGES.

SOME USEFUL RECIPES.

The recipes published this week have been selected from the residue of those sent in for the first prize competition—i.e., "Summer Beverages." Though the majority were excellent, there were many that did not come under the description of "Summer Beverages," a term used generally to indicate light, cooling drinks. At this season and later in the year beverages containing ginger become very welcome, and, indeed, no well-stocked store-room should be without a good ginger cordial, half a wine-glass of which will invariably, if taken in time, stave off a cold. A recipe for peppermint cordial will commend itself for similar reasons. A recipe for blackberry vinegar is very seasonable this month, as the blackberries are beginning to ripen everywhere.

Mrs. Harris Martyn, Sunnyside, Longford.

Blackberry Vinegar—Put one quart of blackberries in a bowl, add three pints of vinegar; stand for 24 hours; then strain this vinegar on to another quart or more of fresh blackberries; let stand again for 24 hours; strain and measure juice into a jar; add to each pint 1lb. of sugar, dissolve before covering the jar, and place in a saucepan of water. Boil for one hour.

Peppermint Cordial—1lb. of lump sugar, one quart of boiling water; put into a large jug; leave aside till quite cold; then add threepennyworth of spirits of wine and threepennyworth of essence of peppermint; bottle immediately; cork very tightly. When required for use put one tablespoonful of the cordial into a tumbler, add a little sugar, and fill with hot water. This is an excellent drink in cold weather.

Mrs. Allen, Anouer, Blackrock, Dublin.

Ginger Ale Punch—One cup sugar, one cup hot tea, three-quarter cup orange juice, one pint ginger ale, one pint Apollinaris, juice of two or three lemons, a few slices of orange.

Pour tea over sugar. When dissolved add orange and lemon juice, strain into a punch-bowl over a good-sized piece of ice; add the ginger ale, Apollinaris, and a few slices of orange. Serve as soon as made with a ladle into small tumblers; about 16 helpings.

Mrs. Sharpe, The Cripples' Home, Bray.

Ginger Wine—3 drachms essence ginger, 3 drachms essence cayenne, one pennyworth essence of lemon, two pennyworth burnt sugar, one ounce tartaric acid, two and a half pounds sugar (loaf or crystal).

Dissolve the sugar in three quarts of boiling water; when quite cold add the essences and burnt sugar; mix well; lastly add the acid. Bottle for use. This mixture will keep good for over three months, the cost is nominal, and it is delicious and wholesome.

Miss H. M. Lavan, Portumna, Co. Galway.

Ginger Beer—1lb. loaf sugar, one gallon boiling water, two lemons, ½oz. cream of tartar, 1oz. whole ginger, ½oz. yeast.

Take a large jar or earthenware pan and put into it the loaf sugar, cream of tartar, and the ginger crushed small; peel the rind off the lemons as thinly as possible and cut the lemons into slices; add the slices and the peel to the other ingredients and pour over the boiling water; stand until lukewarm; then add the yeast, which has been smoothly dissolved with a little castor sugar; stir well, cover the pan, and stand in a warm place for 24 hours; then skim well, and strain the ginger beer through a fine cloth into another vessel, being careful to leave the sediment. Bottle at once, using new corks, and tie very securely. In two or three days it will be ready for use.

PRESTON'S BUSY WEEK.

Elaborate arrangements have been made for the control of traffic through and into Preston during the great Merchant Guild week. Motor traffic through the town is heavy at normal times, and the general plan of the county police regulations is to divert all through traffic, wherever practicable, by routes which will skirt the town and avoid the main streets. Motorists are strongly advised to label their cars with their destinations, in order to avoid the delay of being pulled up for instructions. Public motor parks have been provided on the outskirts of the town to accommodate 5,000 motor vehicles, in addition to special garage accommodation.

According to a Colombo message to the Madras Mail, the Ceylon Government have decided not to take part in the British Empire Exhibition.

YACHTING.

A LIGHT-WEATHER DAY.

It was never very clear where the wind was coming from on Saturday, it varying about nearly from N.W. to N.E., at times there was even south in it; but at its best, and whatever the point, there never was much weight in it, and as a swift flood tide was running, the racing in the bay suffered badly. The D.B.S.C. matches were the worst sufferers. The Seapoint B.C. races were in a zone where there was a better wind, and the boats were not as much affected by the tide.

DUBLIN BAY SAILING CLUB.

Out of fourteen starters in three matches only three finished—viz., two 25-footers in the Mixed Class race, and one 17-footer in the Class III. match, and as it happened this latter boat was 58 sec. outside the time limit for the course (7.15 p.m.), the race therefore being void. It was an instance of real hard luck on the boat in question, Eileen, but it was the fortune of war.

What really was wrong with the day was the strength of the flood tide and the lightness of the breeze, which was not enough to stem the latter. Again, the Bullock mark, in the full force of the tide stream, was the cause of all the trouble. To get up to it and around it in the fluking and soft airs was almost impossible.

Early on the four Wags which started in the Class IV. match gave up the struggle of getting down to this mark. There was little or no wind at the time, but, as it happened, the breeze came again after oars had been got out. The other yachts struggled on.

There was an off chance of the 17-footers, who had only one round, being able to finish. Nautilus gave up early. The others, with great patience and with varying luck, fought their way to the Bullock, but when they neared Sandycove the tide, bad enough before, became too much for the three left. Only one, Eileen, Mr. J. E. Mills, rounded the mark, to finish, as said before, outside the time limit. Mimosa and Hera gave up when they saw the race was hopeless.

MIXED CLASS MATCH for the "Eileen" special prize, with club prizes on handicap. Usual course. Start at 3.20 p.m.

	H.	M.	S.
Punctilio (winner)—Messrs. Newsom and Stephens (2 mins.)	6	16	20
Fodhla (2nd club)—Mr. W. Curtis (scr.)	6	41	15

Darthula, Garavogue, Innisfallen, and Maureen gave up.

It looked a hopeless race at the start, the boats having a beat out to the Bar buoy; but after a period they picked up a northerly breeze, which brought them round the mark, and for some time they travelled well to Bullock. Then they came into the soft and fluky zone, and with the tide running foul their troubles really commenced. All got round at the first time, and all finished the round, Punctilio, the leader, picking up a breeze in Scotsman's Bay, which placed her far in front of Fodhla and the others. It lasted about 40 minutes, or less, and while it did all made the most of it. The 21-footers at the tail of the race suffered the most. Punctilio and Fodhla made the Bullock the second time, and finished with the help of the flood. Darthula reached the mark, but could not get around it, and then was becalmed. The 21-footers, hopelessly out of it, gave up.

SEAPOINT BOAT CLUB.

On most days, as on Saturday, the club courses seem better suited to light weather than do those of the D.B.S.C., the boats sailing them having no Bullock mark, as it were, to negotiate. Saturday was, however, a testing light weather day, but fairly early finishes were recorded, the contrast between these and that of the D.B.S.C. being marked. During almost all the time the boats were sailing they held a wind out of N.N.E.

ROYAL ULSTER CLUB.

Racing under the auspices of the Royal Ulster Yacht Club took place at Bangor on Saturday. The wind which was from fresh to light, fluctuated between north and north-east, and over the usual course it was a broad reach to Carnalea, a beat to the second mark, another beat to the easterly objective, and a run home with spinnakers to port. The result in the cruisers' class showed very keen handicapping. Owing to the wind falling away in the late afternoon the course was shortened for the Rivers Class, and instead of being sent a second round they sailed a distance to the easterly mark and back. The officer of the day was Mr. George Lepper, Rear-Commodore of the club, who was assisted by Mr. R. A. Barbour, Hon. Sec. Details:—

PHŒNIX PARK.

INTERESTING RACING.

FAILURE OF THE FAVOURITES.

GAY DITTY WINS

A splendid afternoon's sport rewarded the large company that assembled in the beautifully appointed Phœnix Park enclosure on Saturday, and it was carried out under the most delightful conditions. The glorious summer sunshine was all the more appreciated because of the wretched weather of the preceding days, when rain and gloom prevailed, and, needless to say, the change was very welcome. The ground yielded excellent going, and runners were forthcoming in strength—seventy horses in all contested the half-dozen events—and, if backers fared somewhat disastrously, the quality of the racing would have made some amends.

Of the party of twelve which turned out for the Liffey Plate, Snow Ball found most favour with the punters, and another strongly fancied candidate was Tilstock, who had run so prominently for the distance of Saturday's race, one mile, in the Hibernian Handicap at the Curragh, won by Ferdia. He, however, disappointed once more; nor did Snow Ball perform up to expectations, and victory rested with Low Tide, who was in the van throughout and won comfortably from the country trained Knock Brack and Slogan. A big field contested the Two-Year-Old Plate, and a hot favourite was quickly found in Alienate, carrying the Rabona colours of Mr. J. J. Maher. She was backed down to 6 to 4, but the task was beyond her compass, and she was relegated into third place by Marten-Wing and Jackdaw of Rheims, the first-named of which pair had more in hand than the half-length by which she won might suggest. She had been placed second or third in each of her three previous races, and those who fancied her now were able to procure nice odds to their money.

Soldumeno was not pulled out for the Enniskillen Plate, the wagering on which did not take an extended range, only three of the eleven starters being honoured with quotations. On the strength of his second to Cignos at Leopardstown, Killucan attracted most support, he winding up a 2 to 1 chance, while 7 to 2 was taken about Orena, and Gay Ditty stood on the 4 to 1 mark; but none of the others came in for any notice in the ring. The trio had the finish to themselves, and an exhilarating set-to it was. A furlong from home Killucan looked like winning, but Gay Ditty coming with a rare rattle in the last fifty yards caught and beat him in good style, and now redeemed the promise he showed in the early part of the season. He was well ridden by the Greenmount jockey, D. Ward, who the previous day had been seen to distinct advantage on Drinmond in a three miles steeplechase at Bellewstown.

Bachelor's Heir, who left off in most demand for the Country Plate, accounted for everything except Minniement, who readily supplemented the success she gained at this venue a fortnight ago, and incidentally compensated Major Cape for the failure of Orena earlier in the day. The Mulhuddert Plate was generally voted to rest between Santa Decca and Lander, and the pair fought out a fine finish, the latter only getting the best of the argument in the last few strides. For the wind-up Clybridge, in the Maiden Plate, atoned for her narrow defeat by Double First at the Maze by scoring cleverly, if not easily, from Irish Eyes and the much-fancied Southpool. Details:—

GATWICK.

LOWOOD'S SUCCESS.

FERNLEY WINS MID-WEIGHT HANDICAP.

Sport at Gatwick on Saturday worked out much better than it had done on the previous afternoon, but the first of the nursery handicaps in the South did not furnish so interesting a race as this class of event is supposed to provide. Archibald had made the journey from Haydock Park in order to ride the top weight, Lowood, and it was soon evident that this Lomond colt was expected to give the weight away all round, for from 6 to 1 he developed into a 5 to 2 favourite. Evidently Walter Griggs had made no mistake as to the capability of his charge, for Archibald jumped him away in front, and, with a clear course to himself on the slow side, he was never caught. The Verne filly hunted him home, but she never for a moment promised to finish on terms with the winner.

Though Miss Cute had no form she had done so well at home recently that she was greatly fancied for the Two-Year-Old Selling Plate. For about half the journey she was going as well as anything, but could not keep it up, and, swerving towards the finish, was just beaten out of a place. The winner, Breslane, who had been second earlier in the week at Folkestone, beat Royal Enclosure in a canter, and was then sold for 320 guineas to Mr. A. Buck, and is, I understand, to be sent immediately to South America.

The penalised Nymphida did not prove the capable stable substitute for Blue Cloud anticipated in the County Mid-Weight Handicap. In fact, from start to finish the issue was confined to the three placed horses, of which Pandarus does not probably quite stay the mile. Fernley cleverly outstayed Excel to score for a stable which does not turn out too many winners, but his success had been very much expected.

Almond Wine, in the Sutton Handicap, atoned to Sir Charles Nugent's stable for the previous day's unexpected defeat of Desire. Feltham, who rode the winner, was entitled to the 5lb. allowance, but his weight did not allow of his taking it. Another apprentice, Rushworth, who has not had so much experience as Feltham, was second on Wee Mon, and he can be complimented on riding the horse home splendidly with his hands and not the whip. Trumpeter, in the Moderate Stakes, was reported to be about the same horse as the previous day's winner, Dunk's Green, but in an exciting finish he could only dead-heat with the erratic Woodford Green for second place, Clarke squeezing Golden Victory through between the pair to gain a head verdict.

HAYDOCK PARK.

FAVOURITES FAIL.

ROCK FIRE WINS GARSWOOD PLATE.

Fine weather was associated with the concluding day's racing at Haydock Park, and there was an excellent attendance. In the principal event, the Garswood Handicap of 1,000 sovs., there were eleven runners, and though on strict book form Royal Alarm had no pretension to make hacks of the opposition, as the betting indicated, money literally poured into the Ring for Lord Barnby's animal. Another candidate who made a noise in the Ring was Rock Fire, with F. Voight, the Australian, up; but while Royal Alarm failed to make the slightest impression in the race, Voight got Rock Fire away with a flying lead, and, clinging to the rails most of the way, was never seriously troubled, and won in a canter by four lengths, Evander being his nearest attendant, with Royal Alarm filling the ignominious position of last but one. His Majesty's Will Somers, on his running behind Express Delivery, was expected to make a good show and, if possible, follow up Bowood's victory, but nothing made the slightest impression on Rock Fire, with whom the Australian secured his first winning mount in this country. He made every post a winning post, and won from end to end in stylish fashion. Haydock used formerly to be considered a backers' paradise, but in the two days' racing only two favourites scored.

SPORTING PARAGRAPHS.

Thurles race meeting arranged for September 18th has been abandoned.

A new two day fixture will be held at the Curragh on October 31st and November 1st.

An additional meeting has been sanctioned for Baldoyle on October 28th.

Seventy horses ran at the Phoenix Park Meeting on Saturday.

It is estimated that the abandonment of the third day's racing at the recent Curragh Meeting cost the Turf Club £1,000.

Of the 547 yearlings put up at the Deauville Sales, 255 were disposed of as compared with 290 out of 379 last year.

Mr. Galstaun has been notified that his Irish bred horse, Galway Gate, won the chief race at Poona on Wednesday, the value being £1,500.

The New York Herald publishes the following picturesque comments on three of the English golfers playing for the American Amateur Championship:—"Cyril Tolley is the most colorful of the Britishers. He really is not a first-class golfer like Gardner or Ouimet, but he is a violent player and an interesting one to watch. His drives are sometimes phenomenal, but he frequently dubs in a way that would shame a beginner. Roger Wethered and Hooman are less exciting, but probably more apt to cause trouble. If there is an English probability, corresponding to Bobby Jones, it is probably Wethered."

SANDYCOVE GALA.

T. H. DOCKRELL WINS PIER RACE.

The Sandycove Swimming Club brought off a very successful gala at the "Forty-foot" on Saturday afternoon. The fixture proved a decided success, both as regards attendance and weather conditions. Mr. P. J. O'Neill, the Club Secretary, and starter at Leinster aquatic galas, is to be congratulated on the success of the afternoon's sport.

The principal items on the programme were the Pier Race and the Leinster Diving Championship. In the former, T. H. Dockrell, who won the event last year, just got the better of the mile champion, J. C. Hopkins, by a couple of inches. Batt, a well-known diver, won the big dive, the champion, R. D. Gibson, being unplaced. The prizes were presented by Mrs. R. W. Hay. Details:—

IRISH TEAM BEATEN AT BELFAST.

On Saturday, at the Waterworks, Belfast, England won the water polo match against Ireland by 6 goals to 4. It was a splendidly contested match. Ireland led at the interval by 3-2, and a few minutes from the finish the teams were level at 4 goals each, but the Englishmen finished in great style, and, scoring two goals quickly, won as stated, but a draw would have been a truer reflex of the merits of the teams.

CRICKET.

PEMBROKE v. LEINSTER

Thanks chiefly to a fine stand between Ganly and Burrows for the fifth wicket, and to some capable bowling by R. H. Lambert, Leinster gained an easy victory over Pembroke at Sydney Parade on Saturday by 145 runs. The Rathmines club, who batted first, occupied the wicket just three hours for a total of 208. The start was none too promising, three wickets falling for 30, while four were down for 50. On Ganly and Burrows coming together, however, a splendid stand was made, and despite frequent bowling changes 118 was added before Ganly was caught behind the wicket. Batting for one hour and a half, Ganly made 87, a display marred by two chances, but which included 5 sixes and 6 fours. Burrows played finely for 58, but he, too, had a couple of "lives." Bonass proved the most successful of the Pembroke bowlers, securing five wickets for 57 runs. The home batsmen in one and a half hours were dismissed for 63, McCarthy (13) and Pickeman (10) alone reaching double figures. Lambert had five wickets for 29, Edwards three for 19, and Rafter two for 7 runs. Score:—

PHŒNIX V. CAPTAIN GREGSON ELLIS'S XI.

As County Kildare did not travel on Saturday to play their Senior League match with Phœnix, a game against Captain Gregson Ellis's XI. was substituted. The weather was ideal, but the pitch was on the slow side when Captain Gregson Ellis's side started batting. Runs came slowly, and at 28 Green, when going well, fell to a catch in the country for 18. Knott and Pelly took the total to 47, when the latter was bowled for 12. Ellis and Knott raised the score to 97 for the third wicket when Knott was dismissed with 27 to his credit. Burlton failed to score, but Ellis and Orpwood added 65 for the fifth wicket, which fell at 174. Capain Gregson Ellis getting a hard-hit 83. With 7 wickets down for 199, Orpwood being 27 not out, the innings was declared. With less than two hours to get the runs, Phœnix started slowly, and lost 4 wickets for 51. Phillips then batted splendidly for 64, but 6 wickets were gone for 134. Seven wickets were down for 147 at the call of time, and the match ended in a draw. Both sides tried numerous bowlers, Buttenshaw (2 for 32) and Crawfurd (2 for 36) being the most successful for Phœnix; while Blackmore (2 for 19) did best for the visitors. Score:—

CLONTARF V. MR. DAVENPORT'S XI.

At Castle avenue, on Saturday, Clontarf suffered defeat from Mr. Davenport's military side by 103 runs. After the recent heavy rain the pitch was very slow, though otherwise in perfect order. The home side, batting first, were all cheaply dismissed. Whelan made a little show at the start before he returned a catch to Berridge, but half the wickets were down for 24, and the side was dismissed for 49. Berridge had 4 wickets for 14 runs, Smith 4 for 16, and Cowburn 2 for 7. The wicket had become a little easier when the visitors had their innings. Pike and Roberts opened, the latter having a fine lift for 6 over the leg boundary in Aston's first over. Roberts was dismissed for a dozen, but Pike saw the Clontarf total passed for 3 wickets before Aston got past his defence. He hit out briskly, but was lucky in getting two lives in the outfield off Ledwidge, the first when he had reached 19. His 43 included a 6 and three 4s. Later on Cowburn batted usefully for 26, and Davenport hit out attractively, and carried his bat for 36 (including a 6 and five 4s), when the innings closed for 152. Ledwidge carried off the bowling honours, taking seven wickets for 51 runs. Score:—

SANDYMOUNT V. Y.M.C.A.

These teams met in the final of the Intermediate League for the second year in succession on the Leinster ground at Rathmines on Saturday, and Sandymount, who were the holders, again proved successful, winning easily by 88 runs. The winners were at an advantage in batting first, as the wicket, drying rapidly, became difficult during the losers' innings. Byrne with a fine compilation of 56 runs, was top scorer for the winners, and D. Head's 39 was also an admirable effort. At no time did Y.M.C.A. shape like getting the runs against some capital bowling by Knowles (5 for 23) and Taylor (4 for 32). Score:—

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL.

OPENING OF THE SEASON.

BOHEMIANS v. SHELBOURNE.

Though the League games will not be inaugurated for at least a couple of weeks the Association Football Season was opened in Dublin on Saturday at Dalymount Park, when Bohemians were at home to Shelbourne. A really good opening game ended in a two clear goals' win for the home side. Both had most of last season's players available, as well as several new ones.

The form displayed was undoubtedly good for an opening game, and the winners, with a little more training, should give a good account of themselves in the future League games. The return of Walsh (goalkeeper) and Watson (right-half) to the Shelbourne team should considerably strengthen their defence, but the forwards will need a lot of tuning up if they hope to repeat last year's performances. Bohemians have a well-balanced side, which worked well in all departments, the back play being particularly good. The forwards, while smart and nippy, lacked finish, the shooting being amateurish. Murray and McLoughlin on either wing dribbled and centred well, but the inside players, with the exception of Willitts, were faulty.

The opening half was well contested and scoreless but twenty minutes after the restart Gormley, from a good centre of McLoughlin's on the right, gave Bohemians the lead, and this Willitts supplemented with a smart shot some ten minutes later. Bohemians had all the best of the closing stages, but failed to add to their score. Result:—

Bohemians ... 2 goals.
Shelbourne ... Nil.

Teams:—
Bohemians—Wilson; Parslow, Vickers; Harris, McIlroy, Otto; McLoughlin, Robinson, Gormley, Willitts, and Murray.
Shelbourne—Walsh; Connolly, Kavanagh; Watson, Harris, Hamilton; Brearly, Doyle, Harvey Arliff, Wilson.

ATHLETICS.

THE TRAMWAY SPORTS.

There was an old-time ring about the proceedings at Lansdowne road on Saturday, when the annual sports in aid of the Dublin Tramway Company's Employés' Benevolent Fund were held there. It was the first meeting of the promoting body held under the auspices of the recently-formed National Athletic and Cycling Association, in which was merged the Irish Amateur Athletic Association, and the opposition of athletes and cyclists who formerly owed allegiance either to the I.A.A.A. or G.A.A. invested the reunion with exceptional interest, while a pleasing feature was the co-mingling of officials who for years had been working on behalf of Irish athletics in different camps, and who on Saturday co-operated wholeheartedly in making this meeting the most successful held for very many years by the tramway men. Happily, the afternoon was fine, and the big gathering witnessed a number of capital finishes, the most exciting of which was the final for the 100 Yards Handicap, which was won off the eight yards mark by A. Faulkiner (Clonliffe), who beat H. M. Martin, of Trinity, by inches, W. R. W. Varian, a foot off, third. As was expected, the Hurdles went to T. G. Wallis, and in the 300 Yards Handicap M. P. Farnon (Dublin) broke the tape a couple of yards ahead of J. J. McLaughlin, who beat T. G. Goff half a yard for second place. B. A. Bingham ran a characteristic race in the Three Miles, and R. D. Stephens had a meritorious victory in the Half-Mile. The field events, as usual, were most interesting. The High Jump was won by W. Britton (6 ins.) at 6 ft. 2 ins., and the Long Jump by M. P. Farnon; but about the most noteworthy performance in this section was the success of the veteran Denis Carey in the Hammer, an event in which he has been figuring with success for thirty years. Mrs. Joseph Mooney presented the prizes. Details:—

100 Yards Girls' Race (Handicap), Final—Kathleen Magee, 1; Kathleen Goff, 2; Alice Moore, 3; Betty Magee, 4; Peggy Magee, 5; Maggie Lynch, 6; Eileen Cronin, 7; Nellie Shaw, 8.

The hundred miles race for the perpetual challenge cup of the Irish Road Club was run off on Saturday under the auspices of the Southern Branch of the Club. Seven competed, and with the course in good order after the recent rains, and an absence of wind, fast times were expected. The race was run over the usual semi-circular course from Ashtown to Navan, Ashbourne and Finglas and back. W. J. Finn proved the winner of the cup, and by covering the distance in 5 hours 31 mins. 12 secs. he put up a good performance. A handicap was run in connection with the race, and this was also won by Finn, the times being as follow:—1, W. J. Finn (scr.), 5 hrs. 31 mins. 12 secs.; 2, R. E. Galway (scr.), 5 hrs. 41 mins. 0 secs.; 3, A. Robinson (20 mins.), 5 hrs. 56 mins. 47 secs. Also competed:—W. O'Brien (5 mins.), E. J. Mecredy (12 mins.), J. J. Shortall (15 mins.), and P. A.I.P.C. LADIES' CHALLENGE CUP.

The first match in the Ladies' Challenge Cup—a four-chukkar tournament—was played between Oak Park and Beech Park on Saturday afternoon at the A.I.P.C. Enclosure, Phœnix Park. Fine weather favoured the fixture, and a large crowd attended. It was a fast, keenly-contested game, and the hitting all round was particularly good. On handicap Oak Park were five points stronger than their opponents, and quite played up to their rating; but Beech Park, for whom the brothers B. and H. O'Reilly showed splendid form, challenged their low rating by winning by a goal.

BEECH PARK (6) v. OAK PARK (5).

In the first chukkar Beech Park showed splendid form, and led by 3 goals to 1 at the change. Mr. B. O'Reilly hit through in the first few minutes, and Mr. H. O'Reilly rode off from the throw-in to score a second. The others attacked shortly afterwards for Mr. Johnston to register, but Beech Park came again, and a good shot by Mr. B. O'Reilly found the mark. Oak Park were in command for the second period, and, thanks to some good team work, they finished up with the lead. Mr. B. O'Reilly increased his side's lead at the start, but Oak Park had everything thereafter, and, scoring per Mr. P. J. Leonard (2), Mr. Johnston, and Mr. J. Leonard, finished up in front. Hard galloping was the order in the third chukkar, but no alteration was made in the score. In the last period Beech Park again assumed the upper hand, and goals by Mr. Daly and Mr. B. O'Reilly left them winners by one goal. Teams:—

Beech Park—Mr. H. J. O'Reilly, Mr. B. T. O'Reilly, Mr. James Daly, and Mr. J. W. Shackleton (back).
Oak Park—Mr. J. Leonard, Mr. P. J. Leonard, Mr. Johnston, and Mr. T. P. Tyrrell (back).
Umpire—Mr. John Leonard.

COCHRANE CUP TOURNAMENT.

At the conclusion of Saturday's game the Stanley Cochrane Cup and prizes were presented to the winners, Liffey Bank (Mr. T. Leonard, Mr. Maxwell Arnott, Mr. James Daly, and Colonel Browne Clayton), by Mrs. J. W. Shackleton, who complimented the members of the team on their success.

MOTOR CYCLING.

DUBLIN CLUB'S SPEED TRIALS.

The Dublin and District Motor Cycle Club ran off a series of speed trials over a distance of a kilometre (1,094 yards) on the Ballynogen road, near Glencairn, on Saturday. The postponement of the events from the preceding Saturday did not affect the entries, and good "fields" contested the five classes into which the competition was divided. Except in the passenger machine class, and the two-stroke light-weights, the backmarkers were asked to give away rather more than they could do, and the "fastest timers" had little to say to the results. Humphreys (Velocette) was the fastest amongst the two-strokes, and was second on the handicap, and one of the scratchmen (E. F. Ashton, 7-9 Indian), was second in the passenger class. In the 350 c.c. class, S. Woods (Cotton), did the fastest time, and in the 600 c.c. class, R. Walsh (James), secured a similar distinction. In the class for sporting machines, Woods improved on his earlier trial, and by covering the distance in 29 4-5 secs., secured the fastest time of the day. The results of the various classes were as under:—

PROSPECTS IN SOUTH AFRICAN ORANGE-GROWING

Orange-growing in the Union of South Africa has become an important undertaking and will be much greater. This year about fourteen thousand tons of oranges will be exported from the Union to Britain, and still more groves are being planted, and many groves already planted are not yet in bearing.

Is it being overdone? Nobody can infallibly predict the future of any industry, especially in these times, but such gauges as there are indicate that the future for South African orange-growing is promising.

Oranges to the value of about £8,000,000 are annually consumed in Britain, mainly in winter. South Africa exports at present less than one-twentieth that amount of oranges, and exports them in the English summer when there is least competition from other orange-growing countries.

Moreover, though the consumption of fruit in Britain is great in the aggregate, it is much lower per head of population than in other civilised countries. Increasing knowledge of the value of fruit, as especially of oranges, in dietary, will correct that anomaly, and the probability is that demand will keep ahead of supply. Besides, there are outside markets.

The subject is one that will repay attention. Prospective growers should study the pros and cons. They can do so by obtaining information from the Office of the High Commissioner for the Union of South Africa, Trafalgar square, London, W.C.2. Enquiry is invited. Not less capital than £2,000 is required by the prospective grower. Write for Farm Book No. "B.C."

NEWS SUMMARY.

IRELAND.

There was rifle and revolver firing in East Belfast on Saturday night. A bomb was thrown, but it did no damage.—(P. 6.)

Three hundred irregulars attacked the national forces at Macroom last Saturday morning. They used ten machine guns, a trench mortar, and two armoured cars. After a fight, which lasted for 8½ hours, they were put to flight.—(P. 5.)

When national soldiers were lined up outside the City Club, Cork, last Saturday morning a machine gun was fired at them. Two soldiers were killed and eleven wounded.—(P. 5.)

Several military posts were attacked in Dublin last Saturday night.—(P. 5.)

A man was dragged from his bed in a house in Gardiner street early on Saturday morning by four armed men, who took him outside the city and shot him. He died yesterday.—(P. 5.)

Four irregulars were surprised last Saturday night in a house at Stillorgan. They offered resistance, and two of them were shot dead.—(P. 5.)

The steamship Wicklow Head has reached Dublin under arrest. It is alleged that her cargo contains arms.—(P. 5.)

GREAT BRITAIN.

The King and Queen received with much sorrow the news of the death of the Duchess of Albany, their Majesties' aunt. (P. 4.)

ABROAD.

Reports from America indicate that a lenient view is taken of the circumstances under which the Foreign Office withdrew the exequaturs from the United States Consular officials at Newcastle-on-Tyne.—(P. 7.)

The Archbishop of Canterbury preached in Geneva yesterday on the ideals of the League of Nations. The mere establishment of the League, he said, showed that the nations appreciated the need for applying the principles of a practical Christianity to international affairs.—(P. 6.)

The Angora Government claims to have driven a wedge into the Greek forces in Asia Minor, to have annihilated the Northern Army and routed the Southern.—(P. 5.)

While Germany seems unable to make deliveries of reparations in kind, she is able to increase Imperial subsidies to necessitous persons and war sufferers. It is stated that there is virtually no unemployment in the country and that German banks have recently lent £2,000,000 to a British firm.—(P. 5.)

SPORTING.

At the Phœnix Park Meeting on Saturday Mr. F. H. Brooke's Gay Ditty won the Enniskillen Plate.—(P. 3.)

At Haydock Park on Saturday Rock Fire won the Garswood Handicap Plate. (P. 3.)

A League of Peace.

The third session of the League of Nations will open at Geneva to-day. The inaugural sermon was preached yesterday by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and for the next four weeks the world's Parliament will deliberate on its manifold problems. Some fifty different nations have sent delegates to Geneva. The British Empire delegation will be led by the Earl of Balfour. All the Dominions will be represented, and the Egyptian Government is taking steps to secure the admission of special delegates from Egypt. Owing to the delays in the passing of the Constitution, the Irish Free State will have no direct representation; but, doubtless, when the Assembly meets again, Irish delegates will swell its ranks. The programme which has been arranged for the third Assembly is very ambitious, and the four weeks' session will be crowded with work. All sorts of reports await its approval; the topics of discussion range from the Polish question to the claims of Esperanto as an international language. The first week, and possibly also the second, will be devoted almost entirely to routine work. Then several international disputes must be considered, including the Polish-Lithuanian controversy, which the League has been trying in vain to settle for the past two years. In January of the present year the problem of Vilna was "settled" by an official decree of the League, which had been requested to act as an arbitrator in the matter; but now the Lithuanians assert that the Poles have ignored its award and demand that the whole question shall be opened de novo.

Such matters, however, are of comparatively minor importance. One of the other items on the agenda is likely to decide the fate of the League. Hungary has applied for membership, and the problem of the admission of what are known as "ex-enemy States" goes right to the root of the principles on which the League was founded. The object of its founders was to gather into a central organisation representatives of all the civilised peoples of the world, in order, primarily, to reduce the possibilities of another war to a minimum, and, afterwards, to co-ordinate and extend the work which is being done throughout the globe to improve the people's conditions of life. This object has not been achieved. In the first place, America refused to have anything to do with the League, and, in the second place, "ex-enemy States"—among which was numbered Russia—were debarred expressly from its membership. A League of Allies and neutrals is useless. America will not join it while it refuses to recognise the existence of two of the greatest nations on earth, whose territories stretch from Vladivostock to the Rhine. The application of Hungary will raise this whole question, and all friends of the League will hope that no further obstacles will be placed in the way of any bona fide State which wishes to join it.

A telegram from Paris to-day announces that the Greek Army has been annihilated; and the Assembly of the League of Nations is meeting at Geneva. There is a cruel irony in the coincidence. It seems to reveal the mockery of the lip service which Europe is paying to a great ideal. The League of Nations can become a vital force in the world. It can mobilise the conscience of mankind against the "monstrous arbitrament" of war. It can expose and denounce the vicious propaganda which the enemies of peace are using as their most formidable weapon, and it can promote good-will among the peoples of the earth. It can do all these, and many other things; but it can do nothing at all until it becomes a real League of Nations. People have no confidence in the present body because they recognise that, without Germany, Russia and the United States, no appreciable progress can be made towards world peace. No further time should be lost, therefore, in admitting the "ex-enemy States" to membership. Such an act of oblivion would do more than a dozen "special missions" to convert the United States. The American people will not join an association which stereotypes the artificial divisions and alliances of the Great War; but even President Harding, who owes his election as President to his uncompromising hostility to the present League, has declared his willingness to give active support to a genuine League of Peace. Much can be done during the next four weeks at Geneva to bring such a body into being, and certainly the world never had such need of its benevolent activities as it has to-day.

American Consuls.

In withdrawing the exequaturs of the American Consul and Vice-Consul at Newcastle-on-Tyne the British Government took a drastic step, but not one which could result in an exchange of diplomatic unpleasantries. A consul is charged with the duty of promoting the trade and commerce of his country in every possible way—and this not less at the expense, if necessary, of the commercial community in which he functions than of others. It is in the pursuit of this duty that a consul is most likely to incur the displeasure of the Government which has granted his exequatur. In practice, however, few incidents of the kind which has caused the temporary closing of the American Consulate at Newcastle have occurred. So long ago as 1856 the United States Government claimed, and the British Government fully conceded, the right of a Government to withdraw an exequatur without offering any explanation of its actions. In that case certain British consuls in Philadelphia, New York and elsewhere were deprived by the United States Government of their exequaturs on the ground that they had engaged in recruiting for the British Army. The British Government declined to admit that its consuls had acted improperly, but conceded that it had no right to enter into the merits of the case. That is precisely the position which has arisen in connection with the two American officials at Newcastle-on-Tyne. Before the withdrawal of their exequaturs certain evidence was supplied by the British Government to the United States Government, which, however, declined to admit that the officials had acted improperly. The British Government thereupon exercised its undoubted right to withdraw their exequaturs without reference to the merits of the case. There the matter ends so far as Messrs. Slater and Brooks are concerned; but this does not mean that the general question will not have to be thrashed out in one way or another. If the United States Government has, in fact, instructed its consuls to withhold, or threaten to withhold, visas in order to compel British subjects to travel in American ships, it ought to say so. The British Government obviously cannot then deprive all the American consuls of their exequaturs. It must act, if at all, directly—that is to say, by compelling Americans visiting Britain to travel in British ships. This policy would produce an absurd position and would lead to an arrangement between the two Governments for a division of the Atlantic passenger traffic. It would be a thoroughly bad arrangement because, when competition was eliminated, both services would deteriorate. If, on the other hand, the United States has made no such rule, and does not propose to make it, the American Consul at Newcastle clearly acted with impropriety if, as alleged, he put difficulties in the way of British subjects who proposed to travel to the United States by British lines.

A Helping Hand.

Two years ago a scheme for helping girls to become self-supporting was started in Southern Ireland by the Central Committee on Women's Training and Employment. The Committee has done excellent work, and all who know its value will regret that it is now coming to an end through lack of funds. The money which the Committee obtained from the late Government was expended in free grants for the training of girls whose prospects had been impaired by the war. A letter which we print to-day shows that the total grant, spent or earmarked for the training of selected girls, amounts to £21,000. The results of a comparatively small expenditure have been very fruitful. Training grants were given to some 370 girls. They have been helped to fit themselves for clerical and educational employment and for appointments in the field of "domestic science." Already at least one half of those who have completed their training have secured positions. Forty-six of them are in clerical employment. "Three adventurous sisters from a remote part of Ireland immediately secured well-paid posts in Spain, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia respectively." "Domestic science" includes cooking, housekeeping and midwifery, and there seems to be a keen demand for ladies who have trained as children's nurses. The Committee's report says that the best openings in an overcrowded labour market at the present time are to be found in the teaching profession or in domestic life. Under the Committee's scheme home-craft training classes were held in Dublin, Cork and other centres. The classes were organised by the local technical instruction committees, and the courses lasted for thirteen weeks. Some 600 women and girls benefited by this training, and it is believed that many of them have taken employment in domestic service. The Committee has laboured without any fuss or advertisement; but few other organisations can have done better work for the country during the past two years. Surely the Government of the Free State owes to the women of Ireland the duty of providing that this helping hand shall not be withdrawn from them.

Protection Run Wild.

The United States Tariff Bill is a reductio ad absurdum of the policy of protection. It is an outcome of the great power which the Farmers' Party now wields in Congress. The representatives of industrial interests have courted the farmers by consenting to crushing tariffs on imported foodstuffs, and in return the farmers have voted for similar imposts on imported textiles and machinery. The Senate's amendments have made the Bill more extravagant than ever. One of them, for instance, inflicts a heavy fine on owners of vessels who make repairs in foreign ports when such repairs are not rendered necessary by stress of weather or accident. The fine amounts to 50 per cent. of the cost of the repairs. Its object, of course, is to provide work for American yards. In effect, however, as all sensible Americans perceive, the result of such legislation must be entirely mischievous. The New York Tribune points out that a shipmaster will take chances with the lives of his passengers rather than pay this exorbitant tax. Public hostility to the Tariff Bill is increasing, and it is quite possible that, if Congress refuses to amend it drastically, there may be a widespread demand for the Presidential veto. It is obvious, in the first place, that Great Britain must trade with the United States if she is to be able to pay her war debt. In the next place, it is certain that, by doubling or trebling the cost of living in America, the Bill would arouse fierce hostility against the present Administration. If it becomes law and is enforced, it will make a gift of the next Presidential election to the Democrats.

GLIDING OR FLIGHT.

DUBLIN'S OPPORTUNITY.

Gliding is not flying, though the belated activities of some newspapers, with more zeal than knowledge, would lead one to suppose so. As with most things, the dividing line is vague, though the difference may be best expressed by saying that gliding desiderates steady atmospheric conditions, true flight-varying currents, as are found in the tropics or mountainous districts, such as the Rhön or the Puy de Dome. A glider uses the resistance of the air to retard the inevitable ending of its flight, steadily dissipating the potential energy due to its weight and altitude. The "sailplane" derives fresh energy from the changing force and direction of the wind.

The true mechanism of winged flight, the "vol à voile," is not known. Some hold it to be due to undulations in the wind, producing on the flexible wing surface a forward propulsive component. Others hold it to be merely gliding, with variation of the centre of gravity and wing incidence. A glider meeting a gust of wind may gain in height more than sufficient to compensate for loss of "ground," but this is not the method of the "oiseaux voiliers." The great birds of prey never flap their wings, save to rise the first few feet, thenceforward with motionless wings, sailing upward 100 feet per minute, or floating in vast orbits, "and a field glass and long and careful attention can detect no motion in the endless circles of the Frigate bird or Condor."

Le Bris, in 1854, referring to an albatross he had shot, says:—"I took the wing and exposed it to the breeze, and lo, in spite of me, it drew forward into the breeze, and tended to rise." He built an artificial bird with non-flapping wings, and was credited with having risen 300 feet.

Worthy of remark in this year's Rhön flights is the pre-eminent part taken by students, none of whose names were heard last year. We have three excellent Engineering Schools in Dublin, the mountains are at our back-door; what more is needed?

MALLOCH-LAWSON.

MEN WITH BOMBS.

Three men, named Martin Killelea, Doon, Boyle; John Kelly, Ballyfermoyle, Boyle; and Pierce Bulger (a Kilkenny man), were captured by the national troops at Boyle on Saturday morning. In their possession were found rifles, revolvers, cartridges, some large bombs, and military equipment.

COURT AND PERSONAL.

Owing to the death of the Duchess of Albany, many engagements made by members of the Royal Family have been cancelled, and others postponed. The late Duchess, who was a daughter of the reigning Prince of Waldeck-Pyrmont, had resided at Kensington Palace since giving up Claremont, and was well known in London, where she associated herself with charitable and philanthropic movements.

• • •

The Duchess of Hamilton left London last Saturday for Australia. The Marquis and Marchioness of Milford Haven have arrived in Paris from their residence at Southsea, and will be away for some weeks. The Grand Duke Michael and Countess Torby are visiting Sir Stuart and Lady Coats at Ballathie, Perthshire.

• • •

Lord Bellew, who has been spending the past six months in England, arrived in Dublin last Saturday. The Lord Chancellor of Ireland has returned to Oatlands, County Dublin. He has been spending the past three weeks in Normandy, where his daughter and son-in-law, Captain and Mrs. Saunders, are spending the summer with their children. The Marquis of Ormonde, who spent a few days in Dublin last week, has returned to Maidstone, where he and the Marchioness of Ormonde will remain until October. The Marquis and Marchioness of Sligo will return to London to-day from Brittany.

The Duke of Argyll has decided to sell his island estates lying off the West coast of Scotland. One of these consists of over 28,000 acres on the island of Mull, including two residences, a number of farms, a deer forest, and extensive shootings and fishings.

• • •

The Marquis de Soveral, formerly Portuguese Ambassador in London, has been seriously ill for a long time, but is at last making progress towards recovery. He is in a nursing home in Paris, where he received a visit last week from the King of Spain, when on his way from Deauville to Madrid.

• • •

The Earl of Dalhousie is forty-four to-day. He is the fourteenth Earl, and succeeded his father in 1887, and sits in the House of Lords as Baron Ramsay of Glenmark. He was formerly in the Scots Guards, and served in South Africa and in the late war. He married the youngest daughter of the first Earl of Ancaster, and the elder of their two sons, Lord Ramsay, is now eighteen. Captain the Hon. Alexander Maule Ramsay, brother of Lord Dalhousie, is married to Princess Patricia of Connaught, now styled Lady Patricia Ramsay and accorded precedence of the Marchionesses of England.

• • •

The Earl and Countess of Bandon are among the latest arrivals at Bath, where Major Sir Nevile Wilkinson is also staying. The Earl of Mayo, who has been at 3 Stratford place since his return from Hungerford, has left London for Scotland, where he is shooting with some friends. The Earl and Countess of Bessborough are spending this month at Foley House, near Lymington.

CUSHENDALL INQUIRY.

The final sitting in connection with the Cushendall Inquiry was held in Belfast on Saturday by Mr. F. J. Barrington Ward, K.C., who was assisted by Mr. Walter Monckton. The inquiry was in relation to the deaths of three young men named John Gore, James McAllister, and John Hill, who were killed in Cushendall on the night of the 23rd June by members of the Ulster Special Police, who arrived in the village with British soldiers in motor lorries.

The Northern Government issued an official statement that these men were killed in an attempt to ambush a party of Specials. Mr. Devlin, in the House of Commons, challenged this statement, and Mr. Churchill, with the approval of Sir James Craig, agreed to an inquiry.

A great many witnesses were examined during the inquiry, which was conducted in private.

Mr. Barrington Ward is to submit his report to the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

DEATH OF THE DUCHESS OF ALBANY.

DAUGHTER-IN-LAW OF QUEEN VICTORIA.

The news of the death of the Duchess of Albany in the Tyrol on Friday morning has been received with sincere regret, and also with surprise, as Her Royal Highness appeared to be in good health when she left England about a month ago.

On receipt of the information in London on Saturday, the following notice was issued in the afternoon from the Lord Chamberlain's Office:—

"The King commands that the Court shall wear mourning for four weeks from this day for the late Duchess of Albany, aunt of His Majesty, the Court to change to half mourning on Saturday, September 23; and Saturday, September 30, the Court to go out of mourning."

The Duchess of Albany, who was the widow of Prince Leopold, Duke of Albany, the youngest son of Queen Victoria, was born on the 17th February, 1861, the daughter of the reigning Prince of Waldeck and Pyrmont. In 1882 she was married to Prince Leopold, who died a little less than two years afterwards, leaving a posthumous son, who succeeded to the dukedom, and a daughter, who is now the Countess of Athlone, being married to the youngest brother of Queen Mary. The late Duchess had residences at Kensington Palace, Claremont (Esher), and Cannes, and was a member of the Order of Victoria and Albert, a Lady of the Order of the Crown of India, and a Lady of Justice of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem. During her widowhood the Duchess interested herself in philanthropic work, and in the condition of the poor. She was the founder of the Deptford Fund, and was Vice-President of the League of Remembrance. She was one of the most enthusiastic patronesses of the Albert Hall Ball in aid of the Hospitals' Joint Appeal, and did much for those who had suffered in the war.

BALMORAL ESTATE MEMORIAL.

UNVEILED BY THE KING.

The King and Queen, the Duke of York, Their Majesties' guests, and members of the Household attended Service in Crathie Parish Church yesterday morning.

In the afternoon the King unveiled a memorial, erected near the entrance gate to Balmoral Castle, in memory of the twenty-eight men from the three estates who gave their lives during the war. His Majesty was accompanied by the Queen, the Duke of York and the Princess Royal, and Princess Maud and others.

Dedicating the memorial, the King said:—"I dedicate this memorial to the glory of God in memory of the brave men of the estate of Balmoral who have fallen in the great war, and who freely gave their lives in our defence. May their memory be cherished, and may all, strengthened by their fellowship, look forward to reunion with them in their inheritance of the Saints in light."

His Majesty laid a wreath of white heather on the memorial.

A large company witnessed the ceremony.

MUSHROOM-GATHERING.

A MORNING IDYLL.

"How light the touches are that kiss the music from the chords of life."—Coventry Patmore.

Those words of Coventry Patmore came to my mind this morning, when the purchase of one of those hours worth their weight in gold, though without the expenditure of a penny, was mine for the asking—

A mushroom field at break of day.

A meadow, grey drenched with dew, beneath the Wicklow hills. A little meadow hid, as it were, in a world of purple heather. A grey dawn, a grey sky, and beyond the darker tone of the low stone wall that ran one side of the field, a hushed grey sea.

Not one sound to disturb the stillness of a perfect hour. Almost I have forgotten that for which I sallied forth at this cold, quiet time, so starred with gem-like fancies are the moments, so remote seems any world beyond this land of heather.

And then, the mist slowly lifts and shows a primrose path all gay-gold with the sunshine of morning; the morning of wilding, happy things, of simple faiths, leading down from sky to earth.

Some bird wings a hurried, startled flight, as if the sun rays caught him napping. A rabbit darts from the undergrowth, flinging me word, as it scuttles by, to cease dreaming, or others will be here who, too, go mushroom-gathering.

A wreath of smoke curls upward from a little white cottage beyond. A child's joyous laugh breaks on the quietness.

Mushrooms! Aye, surpassing even those to be found in the country of the Doones.

Seeking amid the grasses one may find not only mushrooms, but something else, the half-forgotten secret that once we almost learned in childhood's days, the secret of content; that elusive, yet wholly real possession but had for one asking in moments such as these. And then the widening of that primrose path, until both land and sea is sprayed with wild gold gleams, as, with the basket full, I tread once more the little rugged walk home with the pleasant, albeit mundane, vision of a cheery wood fire; for the day is yet young and the air blows keen from the Irish Sea, the bright pretty china, the hissing urn, the folded paper, just arrived; the half-open box of cigarettes, laid temptingly near; and always that blessed sense of the graciousness of simple things, once we have learned "how light the touches are that kiss the music from the chords of life."

DOROTHY HUNGERFORD.

JOTTINGS AT PHŒNIX PARK.

(FROM OUR LADY CORRESPONDENT.)

Fine weather and a well-filled card contributed to a really enjoyable afternoon's amusement at Ashtown last Saturday, when the September Meeting was held on the Phœnix Park Club course. The attendance was surprisingly good for a time when society is mostly abroad and sportsmen are frequenting the moors. Many people had motored quite long distances to the course, showing their appreciation of the fixture, which served as a welcome interlude in an otherwise dull season. Despite the counter-attractions of the D.U.T.C. employés sports at Lansdowne road and a polo tournament in the Park, the popular parts of the course were well filled, and the keenest interest was taken in the racing.

The grounds were looking lovely, and the gay-hued blossoms in gardens and grounds made quite a Corot picture against the vivid green of the trees, where not a sign of approaching autumn is yet discernible. Indeed, visitors to the paddocks between the races invariably lingered to the last minute inspecting the floral attractions, particularly the rock garden, now in the zenith of its beauty.

Among those present were the Countess of Fingall, Lord Killeen and the Hon. Gerald Plunkett, Lord Bellew, Mr. and Lady Mary Corbally, Miss Corbally, Lady Tyrwhitt, Sir Walter and Lady Nugent, Lady Arnott, Captain L. Arnott, General Sir Bryan and Lady Mahon, Mr. R. Milbanke, Sir Francis and Lady Lambart, Major and the Hon. Mrs. Barry, Sir George and Miss Brooke, Sir William Goulding, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. McNeile, Miss McNeile, Colonel Edgeworth-Johnstone, Mr. and Mrs. T. K. Laidlaw, Miss Laidlaw, General and Mrs. Smith Bingham, Captain and Mrs. Wyndham-Quin, Colonel Challoner Knox, Colonel and Mrs. Bent, Mr. and Mrs. Lindsay Fitzpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Maher, Colonel Honner, Major and Mrs. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Shackleton, Miss West, Captain and Mrs. King French, Mr. Maxwell Arnott, Mr. and Mrs. Moore, Mr. E. Bellaney, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. H. Peard, the Misses Synnott, Mr. W. Hunt, Captain B. Daly, Mr. and Mrs. A. McCann, Mr. and Mrs. J. McCann, Miss Hughes, Madlle. Blanche, Mr. H. Ussher, Mrs. Shawe-Taylor, Miss Barnaby, Mr. C. T. Wallace, Major Cape, Miss O'Connor, Mr. H. Hartigan, Mr. A. Lowry, Captain Hume, Miss Reckitts, Mr. and Mrs. Myerscough, Mr. Taylor, and Mr. Hart.

GENERAL MACREADY.

General Sir Nevil Macready, Commanding-in-Chief in Ireland, left Kingstown for England on Saturday evening.

DIPLOMATIC EXCHANGE.

The Foreign Office on Saturday issued the following:—"Sir Beilby Alston, His Britannic Majesty's Minister, Peking, has been obliged to take a rest from his official duties for the past three months, acting under advice of his doctors, who fear that his health may not prove equal to continued strain of work next winter in the rigorous climate of Peking.

"With the approval of His Majesty the King, the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs has, therefore, sanctioned an exchange of posts between Sir Beilby Alston and Sir Ronald Macleay, His Britannic Majesty's Minister at Buenos Ayres.

"It is confidently hoped that milder conditions of the Argentine climate may soon completely restore Sir Beilby Alston's health."

GERMAN UNEMPLOYED.

BERLIN, Saturday.

The number of unemployed in receipt of full relief at the end of July was 15,400, as against 19,700 at the end of June.

LONDON LETTER.

THE DUCHESS OF ALBANY

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON, SUNDAY NIGHT.

The death of the Duchess of Albany came as a great surprise to London yesterday; for it was quite unknown that she was ill, though she had not been particularly well during the early part of the year. She left London for France and Switzerland less than a month ago, after attending the great garden party at Buckingham Palace. It is thought in Court circles that her death may have been due to heart failure. It has taken place during a visit to her son, the ex-Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, at Innsbruck, and Princess Alice Countess of Athlone will leave Balmoral to-morrow to go to Innsbruck.

The Duchess, who was beloved in Royal and Court circles, was much affected by the war. As mother of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, she had the sad experience of having her son fighting against her King and nephew. She was also much affected by the change in financial conditions, and found it necessary to give up living in the home to which her husband took her as a bride—Claremont, at Esher—and to accept a suite of rooms at Kensington Palace. Even that was found rather expensive, and a suite was being prepared for the Duchess at Hampton Court, away out of London.

MR. COLLINS'S PORTRAIT.

Sir John Lavery, who was a friend of Mr. Michael Collins, was in Dublin when the body of the Irish leader was brought to St. Vincent's Hospital and he at once began to paint a portrait. This picture has been completed in nine days, and to-morrow afternoon it will be exhibited at the Lavery studio in South Kensington, under the title of "Michael Collins, killed in action, 22nd August, 1922." Sir John Lavery, on his return from Dublin, was greatly disinclined to speak of his experience. All that he would say was that it was remarkable.

Little news from Ireland is published in the Sunday newspapers, but the Observer remarks that "Dublin's Parliament is definitely summoned for next Saturday, and that should help in showing what the temper is in political circles and, to some extent, in the country. There are voices already raised for a 'patched up peace.' But, if brigandage comes to be advertised as a sure way to political recognition, the outlook can scarcely be other than a dismal one. It would be more hopeful to think that Mr. Cosgrave and his fighting men were resolved at all costs to make the community master in its own house. They are only entering upon their task and are entitled to claim a suspension of the world's judgment."

The reply of M. Poincaré on behalf of the French Government to the Balfour Note was received at the Foreign Office at a late hour yesterday, and consequently there has been but little time to digest it. It is noteworthy, however, that its contents and the language employed have already brought forth a stream of adverse comment in Paris and France. It is remarked here that the Note, if it means anything, means clearly that France will not think of paying her debts at the moment. In official circles here the Note is welcomed, though there are differences on certain points.

The Prime Minister was to discuss the Note during the week-end with Sir Robert Horne and Sir John Bradbury, prior to a full consideration by a meeting of the Cabinet early in the week. Mr. Lloyd George is much surprised at the claim made for a review of the charges made to France for goods supplied. This comes at such a late hour that it can scarcely fail to be surprising, and it has the disadvantage for France that the British Government might also ask for such a revision concerning the charges made by France. These charges never have been set out in detail on this side; but enough is known of them to recognise that a full publication would astonish most Englishmen.

THE FRENCH NOTE.

Taken all round, the Note is regarded as a step forward, and there can be little doubt that the suggestion of the French Premier that there shall be a conference of all the Allies on debts and indemnities will be accepted in London; and inasmuch as the United States is so deeply interested in this matter, it can scarcely remain aloof from such a gathering. France, by the mere suggestion, shows that she is beginning to come to terms with the actual facts, and this alone is a very great advantage in a difficult situation.

The dispute over the will of Lord Northcliffe has not been settled, though it was widely reported yesterday that such had been the case. There is, however, a prospect that the intervention of Lord Rothermere may have a very satisfactory effect, and that there may be a statement very shortly.

The Radio Exhibition and Wireless Convention, opened at the Central Hall, Westminster, yesterday, must have been arranged for the schoolboys on their holidays. At any rate, they thought so; for they packed the big hall and examined everything with the air of experts. The exhibition is most interesting, since it brings down to a practical level what many people still suppose to be merely fanciful. Receiving sets and loud speaking sets are shown in a great variety. During the exhibition a competition will be run for the benefit of those who combine wireless and detective interests. An ex-Scotland Yard man has erected a set of circumstances round a murder, with a model of the scene where it took place. Questions concerning the supposed crime are answered by wireless by the only three people who know the solution of the mystery. Every schoolboy present yesterday seemed to be going in for this interesting competition.

The Weekly Despatch says to-day that a wireless concert was heard for the first time in a train yesterday. At the swimming championship sports by the lake, close to the L.N.W.R. generating station at Stonebridge Park, the rain necessitated the provision of shelter. Consequently a train was drawn up beside the lake for use as a grand stand. In this a listening-in apparatus was fixed, and the "passengers" were able to hear a wireless concert.

"East of Suez," by Mr. Somerset Maugham, is a very interesting play, exceptionally well produced and finely acted. It is so strong that it could have stood alone without the support of the really wonderful Chinese, so perfectly arranged by Mr. Basil Dean. These form such a remarkable spectacle, however, that they are well worth seeing. The plot centres round the love affairs of Daisy, the daughter of an English father and a Chinese mother. The scene is laid in Peking, and there is a great scene of a market place, a Manchu wedding and a temple interior, all carried out by real Chinese. The crowds in these fine pictures are most effectively drilled, and one scene, wherein a crowd gathers mysteriously round a pillar, whereon it bound an assassin, and disappears in the same silent, creepy manner, is most thrilling. The play had a great welcome from an enthusiastic gathering.

AN OFFICER'S ESCAPE.

A party of officers of the national troops stationed in Queenstown had a remarkable escape on last Thursday evening. As the motor car, in which some officers were seated, was passing Carrigloe, it was fired at from Passage West, a village at the other side of the river, by irregulars. The driver was seriously injured in the right hand, two of the fingers of which were almost severed. The officers escaped injury.

ATTACK ON MACROOM.

TRENCH MORTAR USED BY THE IRREGULARS.

A DISORDERLY RETREAT.

NATIONAL SOLDIERS KILLED IN CORK.

Last Saturday morning the irregulars made an attack in force on Macroom. They used ten machine guns and a trench mortar, and were supported by two armoured cars.

After a fight which lasted for over eight hours the garrison of national troops put them to flight. Two soldiers were killed and two wounded. The irregulars suffered heavy losses.

A shocking affair is reported from Cork. A number of unarmed soldiers were lined up outside the City Club, when fire was opened on them from a machine gun which was mounted on the sidecar of a motor cycle. Two of the soldiers were killed and eleven were wounded.

The steamship Wicklow Head has reached Dublin under arrest. She was searched by marines when off Queenstown, and it is alleged that her "general" cargo includes arms and ammunition.

BATTLE AT MACROOM.

IRREGULARS USE A TRENCH MORTAR.

The following official report was issued in Cork last night:—

"Three hundred irregulars, using ten machine guns, two armoured cars, and one trench mortar, made a concentrated attack upon Macroom at 5 a.m. on Saturday, 2nd September.

"The attack lasted until 1.30 p.m., when the attackers were driven off in disorder and followed some distance.

"Throughout the attack, which lasted eight and a half hours, a heavy fire exchange was indulged in. We suffered four casualties—two dead and two wounded. The enemy's casualties were observed to have been heavy. The enemy were seen removing the dead by horse transport.

"The position is now quiet."

Our Cork Correspondent says that the assault on Macroom was desperate. The soldiers ultimately brought an 18-pounder into action and scattered their assailants.

The irregulars did not so much aspire to a military victory as to enter the town in order to procure food. It is well known that they are hemmed in in a wild country around the Bandon, Macroom, Donoughmore areas, without any essential services.

Another factor in the move to recapture the Macroom post, as in Bantry, would be to break the circle around them, which, if sustained, must mean their capitulation.

The most pitiable phase is tragically emphasised in the report of the resident doctor of the Cork Sanatorium, which says that the patients are starving.

LIGHTNING ATTACK.

TWO SOLDIERS KILLED AND ELEVEN WOUNDED.

As the result of a lightning attack on national troops stationed at Cork City Club, Grand Parade, from Sullivan's quay, across the river, one volunteer was shot dead, a second died from wounds, and eleven were wounded—six or seven very seriously. The list of casualties is:—

Dead—Volunteer Thomas Conroy, 16 St. Augustine street, Dublin; Volunteer Michael Behan, Engineering Section, 15 St. Paul street, Dublin.

Wounded—Volunteer John Price, 4 St. Augustine street, Dublin; Volunteer M. Gorman, Packenhall street, Castlepollard; Volunteer E. Shiels, Newfoundland street, Dublin; Volunteer E. Mulvaney, Newcastle, Mullagh, Kells (very serious); Volunteer Robert Farrell, 16 Maxwell street, Dublin (very serious); Volunteer M. McDonald, 17 Nun's Walk, Drogheda; Volunteer S. O'Neill, 32 Lower Kevin street, Dublin; Volunteer James McCann, 89 Hamilton street, Glasgow (serious); Volunteer John O'Connor, 1 Willowbank, Belfast (serious); Volunteer James Yates, 72 Capel street, Dublin; Volunteer Richard Boyle, 18 Queen street, Dublin; Volunteer John Kingston, Market street, Bantry; Volunteer William Healy, Drogheda; Corporal John Clarke, Cumberland street, Birr.

The dead bodies of Volunteers Conroy and Behan have been removed to Dublin.

At about ten in the morning the national troops were sitting or standing in groups on the Grand Parade, outside the club premises, when the officer in charge came out and told them to fall in and go inside to draw their pay. The soldiers paraded in front of the club, between it and the National Monument, with the intention of going into the building one by one. They were facing the South Mall.

MACHINE GUN FIRED.

Just as they paraded the attack was opened on them from the opposite side of the river—Sullivan's quay. A motor bicycle and sidecar was proceeding slowly up the quay from Parliament Bridge in a westerly direction. A machine gun was mounted in the sidecar attachment, and trained on the Grand Parade. As soon as the soldiers came into view of the two men in this vehicle, the machine gun opened fire.

At the same moment two men with rifles were seen to fire on the unarmed soldiers from the roof of a house a little to the Parliament Bridge side of Friary lane, which turns off Sullivan's quay at right angles almost opposite the national monument. Two other men opened fire from another low roof on the western side of the corner of Friary lane. These four snipers began to fire at the moment when the man in the sidecar began using the machine-gun, and their shots passed over the heads of the two men on the road.

The motor bicycle continued all the time moving westwards, and when the machine-gun ceased firing jumped forward at a terrific pace and disappeared in the direction of Barracks street. Heavy firing by the four snipers covered the retreat of these two men.

The whole affair lasted only about five minutes, but the deadly fire from the machine-gun used at such short range put thirteen of the soldiers out of action in two minutes. One of the worst features of the attack was the fact that explosive bullets were used, with the result that those struck by them were horribly mutilated. About twenty-five or thirty rounds from the machine-gun were fired, while several other rounds were fired by the four snipers.

The wounded were taken to the Mercy Hospital, and are detained at that institution. One woman was admitted at about noon. Her name is Catherine Quirke, of Coach street. She had her leg very badly shattered, and a few minutes before she was taken to the hospital a loud explosion was heard near Henry street, close to the Mercy Hospital. It was stated that a bomb had been thrown at some of the troops on the way to or returning from the Mercy Hospital when near Henry street, and it was in this explosion that the woman was said to have been injured. She is in a very serious condition, and had to have her leg amputated.

Some arrests were made later. The prisoners included a man who had a machine-gun strapped to his shoulder under a trench coat. Another man with a bomb in his pocket was taken into custody, and also four others with revolvers. These arrests were made throughout the day.

A CARTER'S FATE.

BODY TAKEN HOME BY HORSE.

Mystery surrounds the death of Jeremiah Coleman, a carter, George's quay, Cork.

At 7 o'clock yesterday morning his horse and cart arrived at the stable near Elizabeth Fort, and in the cart was the body of Coleman, shot through the forehead. He had been dead for some hours.

Coleman left the city for Crookstown on Saturday with a varied assortment of foodstuffs for farmers and villagers in a wide area. These goods he delivered, and he must have met his death on the return journey. The discovery of his dead body was made when people in the neighbourhood of Barrack street were aroused by the horse kicking at the stable door.

SHOT IN THE LEG.

John Courtney, of 6 Werburgh street, Dublin, was shot in the leg near the City Hall last night. He was taken to Mercer's Hospital, where it was found that the wound was slight, and after treatment he was discharged.

STEAMER ARRESTED.

ALLEGED TO BE CARRYING MUNITIONS.

Our Queenstown Correspondent writes:—There has been considerable activity on the part of the naval ships stationed here for several days. Night and day destroyers are patrolling the south and west coasts. All vessels entering the harbour or passing by are closely scrutinised, and the homeward bound liners which call here from American ports are regularly boarded by national troops. All the passengers landing here, as well as their luggage, are examined, with the object of preventing the smuggling of arms and ammunition into the country and the keeping out of undesirables.

At about noon on the 1st inst. H.M.S. destroyer Doon observed the ss. Wicklow Head in a position several miles south-east of the harbour, and, putting on steam, got within range of her after an hour's chase. She ordered the steamer to stop, and sent an armed search party of Marines and sailors on board. In a short time a signal came back to the destroyer, alleging that arms and ammunition had been found. The destroyer went alongside, and placed the steamer under arrest. The captain was ordered to take his vessel to Queenstown, where she arrived between three and four o'clock.

She remained in the harbour until eight o'clock in the evening, when, accompanied by a fast destroyer, she left for Dublin.

The Wicklow Head came from Hamburg, and her cargo was described as "general" in the advice telegram that was received by the pilot at Queenstown, who expected her in or about the time of her capture. It is stated that if she had not been intercepted, she would have gone to a western port to land her cargo.

The Wicklow Head, which is owned by the Ulster Steamship Company, belonged to the Palgrave Murphy line. She arrived off Kingstown at about four o'clock on Saturday evening. A guard of national troops was placed on board, and the bluejackets and Marines withdrew. The vessel reached the Alexandra Basin yesterday.

HAND-TO-HAND FIGHT.

TEN IRREGULARS CAPTURED.

Signal success was obtained by national troops operating in the neighbourhood of the Comeragh Mountains on Saturday. It involved the capture of ten prisoners, including a prominent irregular leader, and a large quantity of ammunition, arms, and equipment.

A battle between a detachment of the troops and a large section of the irregular forces took place in the open at a spot between Mount Kennedy and Carrigoma, east of the Dalgan River, and about seven miles from the town of Dungarvan. The engagement developed into a hand-to-hand encounter, which lasted for some three-quarters of an hour, during which a fierce fire was maintained by both sides from rifles and machine guns.

The party of troops which took part in the attack were led by Lieutenant Hayes. They left Kilmacthomas on the previous evening with the object of locating the irregular outposts. (It was known that the main body was in the district.) The national troops remained in the vicinity of the irregular positions overnight, being placed at various points. They were sighted by the irregulars while engaged in the work of reconnoitring, but the latter were evidently under the impression that the troops had gone in the direction of Dungarvan. They were, therefore, taken somewhat by surprise when the troops appeared before their vantage points.

At 6.30 yesterday morning the outposts first sighted the advancing troops, who were engaged in making a rigorous search of the district, and at once opened fire on them. There was a prompt reply. The main body of the irregulars were alarmed, and decided to stand and make some sort of a fight of it. Exchanges of fire, brisk and sustained, announced the fact that the original skirmish had developed into a pitched battle, and the country around and the near-by hills reverberated with the sounds of heavy rifle and machine-gun fire.

PUT TO FLIGHT.

The superiority of the fire of the troops, however, soon began to have its effect. After three-quarters of an hour the irregulars slackened off, and began a retreat towards the Comeragh Mountains. Meantime the national troops, who had been advancing all the time over the rough ground of the smaller foothills, had driven a wedge into the irregular column and taken ten prisoners. The remainder were pursued into the mountains, where they succeeded in making good their retreat.

The mountains at this point afford every facility for safe retreat on account of the nature of the ground. After the engagement it was found that James Morrissey, Kilmavee, "Captain" and "Adjutant" of the irregulars, had been wounded in the hand; while another, whose name is stated to be Hearne, was severely wounded in the spine. It was reported by a postman, who reached Waterford later in the day, that he had seen two of the irregulars lying dead in the vicinity of the engagement.

No casualties were suffered by national troops.

The names of the ten prisoners are:—James Morrissey, Kilmavee, "Captain" and "Adjutant" of the Kilmacthomas irregular battalion; Patrick Mulcahy, Edward Power, Stradbally, Co. Waterford; Michael Sheehan, Ballyduff; John Cullen, New Lane, Ballybricken, Waterford; James Kennedy, No. 6 Grange Row, Waterford; Michael Power, Ballyduff, Kilmeaden; Martin Cullen, Doyle street, Waterford; William Houlihan, Kilmoganny; and Daniel Sullivan, Abbeyfeale.

The wounded prisoners were taken to the Waterford County and City Infirmary.

The national troops also captured a quantity of equipment, ten rifles, one revolver, a large quantity of Small Arms ammunition, and a great deal of irregular correspondence. Among the latter was a despatch from an irregular to the "Adjutant" of his battalion, in which the writer referred to the marine station at Ballinacourty, near Dungarvan, as follows:—

"The place is an excellent one for landing troops. Paul (meaning Commandant Paul, O.C., Waterford Brigade) and the 'Staters' know all about it." The despatch ended with an urgent appeal for tobacco and cigarettes for the irregulars.

At a place called "The Pike," about five miles from Dungarvan, the mail car driver was held up on Saturday by a party of irregulars, who seized the mail bags, and informed the driver that if he called at a certain house in the vicinity of the seizure on his return journey he would receive back the mail bags, presumably after they had been "censored." The driver was, however, spared the trouble of the call, as the mail bags had already been safely recovered by the national troops.

A SLIGO ARSENAL.

The national forces in Sligo have captured a small arsenal on the outskirts of the town. In the course of a search by a party of soldiers they found the following in a disused outhouse:—One large land mine, 1½ stones of high explosive (known as "wallflower"), 59lbs. of blasting powder, five stones of gunpowder, 20lbs. of smokeless powder, 400 sticks of gelignite, 400 yards of fuse, two moulds for manufacturing buckshot, 30 detonators, and a large quantity of blank cartridges.

THE LIMERICK FRONT.

SEARCHING THE HILLY DISTRICTS.

A SHARP ENGAGEMENT.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

LIMERICK, Saturday.

Limerick and the surrounding district continues to be quiet in the main, only a few small incidents breaking the calm current of normal life. The sporadic sniping which was, at worst, more annoying than dangerous has greatly decreased since the "Curfew" was instituted, and since the patrols have increased in discipline and efficiency.

So far as can be judged, no fresh columns of irregulars have appeared in the district to take the place of those captured by the national forces, and so the whole task of maintaining the fight rests upon the few local irregulars who have as yet succeeded in avoiding arrest by the police. These are not very enterprising, and confine themselves to attempts to surprise any small detachment of troops who may come their way.

One such attempt was made yesterday, when a motor car containing Captain Quin, the energetic head of the local military police, and three soldiers of the national forces was ambushed about a mile outside the City of Limerick. Bombs were thrown at the car by men standing behind a wall, and one man was wounded by the explosion. The attackers made good their escape for the time being.

Another method of war which is being increasingly employed is the road mine. Although the type of mine employed by the irregulars is very inefficient, and the men told off to explode them are, for the most part, inexpert, a car is occasionally damaged.

No part of Ireland can be counted clear of irregulars, but they are most numerous around Clonmel and in the mountains of West Cork and East Kerry. Killarney cannot be recommended at present as a purely pleasure resort. The task of clearing this area has been entrusted to Brigadier Daly, and engagements may shortly be expected.

ANXIOUS TO BE TAKEN.

IRREGULARS WHO WERE "FED UP."

LIMERICK, Sunday.

Captain Quin continues to be the stromy petrel of the Limerick garrison. Yesterday, in the hills which surround the stark and pitiable ruins of Kilworth Camp, burned by irregulars, an exciting little engagement took place between the national forces, under Captain Quin, and a large body of irregulars. On the day before Captain Quin had started from Limerick on a semi-police, semi-military expedition. With him went three other officers and nine men in an armoured Crossley and the Rolls-Royce armoured car known as "Danny Boy."

Yesterday morning the party arrived at Kilworth Camp, and, leaving the main road, advanced along a side road into the mountains, in search of some irregulars who were supposed to be hiding in the houses near by. Their path was soon blocked by a fallen tree, which it was necessary to remove, and the cars were stopped while Captain Treacy, one of the party, went to a neighbouring house to borrow a saw. Captain Quin took advantage of the delay to fulfil his lust for adventure by pushing forward to carry out further investigations.

First let us see what happened to Captain Treacy. Arrived at the house that he had selected, he knocked, opened the door, and saw sitting by the fire a man wearing civilian dress as far as his waist, and from then down dressed in the characteristic green of the National Army. Knowing that there were no national troops in the immediate district except his own men, Captain Treacy immediately covered him. But the irregular (for so he was) made no attempt to show fight. The forced marches and sparse living which had been forced upon him in the last few weeks had made him not loth to surrender, and with the remark, "It's all right; I won't fight," he allowed himself to be made a prisoner. Three other fully armed irregulars next appeared from upstairs and gave up their rifles, and all four were conducted to the waiting cars.

On the way a fifth irregular walked over a ditch and into the arms of the national troops. On him were found a revolver and a quantity of ammunition, and on being questioned he disclosed that his rifle was in a neighbouring house, whence it was immediately fetched.

Houses in the neighbourhood were by now a matter for investigation. Irregular number six was no less anxious to be finished with the war than his companions. He delivered up his arms with the remark, "I don't want to fight; I am fed up." So far the national troops had everything their own way, and a little sniping from long range while they were clearing away the tree on the road did not much disturb them.

BRISK FIGHT.

Captain Quin had not, however, returned, and we must now see how he had been faring in the meanwhile. With a party of three men he had gone down a small lane, nosing about like a terrier after rabbits. Presently he nosed out an irregular slouching along a ditch to one side of the road, and opened fire upon him. As soon as the shot was fired, it was answered by a burst from a Thompson gun and a volley of rifle fire. It was evident that the irregulars were in considerable strength, and Captain Quin determined to retreat down the lane, sending his men on first and bringing up the rear himself.

As he retired, a man jumped over the hedge and, saying that he was one of the national troops, drew a revolver, and fired at the captain, who returned the fire. Then three other men also cleared the hedge and tackled the captain from behind, seizing his revolver and making him a prisoner. A colloquy then took place, in which the irregulars, like their companions, professed themselves tired of the war, and laid the whole blame upon their leaders. On this occasion, however, they boasted that they had the national troops completely surrounded, and all roads blocked and mined. They suggested to Captain Quin that he should go back to the cars and tell them to surrender.

Captain Quin consented to deliver the message, and advised the irregulars not to accompany him lest they should be shot. He went on alone to the cars and held a short council of war with his officers, the outcome of which was that they determined to fight on.

The cars now returned to the main road, and attempted to proceed towards Fermoy, but found the road blocked and cut with a trench. Fire was now opened from all sides, and, under this fire, the cars had to proceed slowly backwards up the Hill until they come to a place when they could turn. The fight went on briskly the while between the irregulars, under cover, and the two cars. Some of the soldiers, together with Captain Quin, kept pace with the cars on foot, and the machine gun in "Danny Boy" was almost continuously in action.

At last, after a fight of over three hours, the national forces won their way through, after killing at least two of the irregulars and wounding several others.

Later.

Captain Quin has just been shot. He was driving a Ford car to-day at a place near Pennywell, accompanied by two men, armed with rifles. A single shot was fired at the car, which hit Captain Quinn in the arm and broke the bone. He is now in the hospital.

A PRIEST'S ACTION.

The irregulars have burst again into writing. The parish priest at Kilflynn, in Kerry, incurred their dislike, and the following notice was posted in the neighbourhood:—

"PROCLAMATION.

"Whereas our reverend and hitherto respected pastor, Father O'Sullivan, has so much over-stepped his sacred office as to use the altar for the purpose of making incendiary statements calculated to cause serious disaffection amongst the loyal supporters of the Irish Republic; and whereas the aforesaid supporters are liable to be influenced by these statements, it has been decided by the competent military authority to take drastic action against any person or persons who assist in establishing British authority under the guise of the Irish Free State in Ireland.

"(Signed), George O'Shea, O.C., G Company, 3rd Battalion, Kerry, No. 1 Brigade; G. Cashill, O.C. Signals, Kerry, No. 1, Brigade, Competent Military Authorities."

ROYAL IRISH CONSTABULARY.

Disbanded men, who hold travelling warrants to Chester, should note that the warrants are not available after the 7th instant. Where such warrants are not used by that date, they should be returned to the Irish Office, Old Queen street, London, where they will be exchanged, if desired, for warrants to any part of Great Britain.

GREEK FORCES ROUTED.

TURKS' EXTRAVAGANT CLAIMS.

NORTHERN ARMY ANNIHILATED.

END OF FIVE DAYS' OFFENSIVE.

The Angora Government has sent a message to its Diplomatic Mission in Paris saying that the Turkish offensive launched on August 26 has ended in the utter defeat of the Greek forces, the breaking of the Greek Army in two, and the "complete annihilation" of the northern portion.

This report must, of course, be treated with a certain amount of reserve.

There is much uneasiness in Athens as to the course of events. The Greek official reports are scarce and contradictory. Many wounded have arrived, and extensive hospital services are being organised.

Special measures have been taken to maintain order, but the public remains calm.

ANGORA'S OFFICIAL NEWS.

SWEEPING VICTORIES.

The Diplomatic Mission of the Angora Government in Paris published the following communiqué last night:—

"Angora, August 31.—The big offensive launched on the 26th in Afium Karahissar sector was pressed for five days with interruption, and ended in the defeat of the bulk of the Greek Army.

"Under pressure from our troops, the Greek Army divided into two. The division composing the Greek Northern Army has been completely annihilated, and the men have dispersed into the mountains and the adjoining valleys. The Southern Army has suffered severe setbacks in the Tulubunar sector, and is in retreat in the direction of Ushak.

"We have captured large quantities of war material and munitions, and 150 guns of all calibres. Kutaya and Kedoz have been occupied by our troops."

GREEK COMMUNIQUES.

CONTRADICTORY AND LACONIC.

Conflicting reports are being issued in Athens as to the fighting in Asia Minor. It was announced on Friday:—

"Reports in foreign newspapers to the effect that Eskishekr has been occupied, that the Turkish advance in the Ismid sector is threatening Brusa, that the Greek Army has been surrounded, and that the native population in Asia Minor has revolted, are all devoid of foundation.

"The Minister of the Interior reports:—The situation in general is reassuring, the enemy, being between 90 and 100 miles from his point of departure, could not advance further owing to lack of communications for supplies."

On the same day the following official communiqué was issued by the Greek Government:—

"In conformity with orders, the withdrawal of the southern group is continuing, with very little enemy pressure. The 3rd Corps is also withdrawing. The evacuation of Eskishehr, which was ordered several days ago, has been completed."

Another official Greek communiqué issued in Athens on Friday says:—"Ismid and Eskishehr Fronts—Nothing to report. Our troops in the southern group are continuing their retirement without serious enemy pressure, and have been withdrawn to the east of Ushak."

Reuter's Correspondent in Athens telegraphed on Saturday:—The evacuation of Eskishehr is the only official news available here to-night. A number of wounded have arrived in Athens. Hospitals are being promptly organised. The general public is receiving the bad news with calm, and the special measures taken for the maintenance of order seem uncalled for.

Uneasiness prevails among the public, not because it believes the exaggerated and often groundless Kemalist communiqués regarding the fighting in Asia Minor, but owing to the laconical Greek communiqués, and to the fact that they are rarely issued. It is generally felt that very important events are impending, and there are persistent reports of Ministerial changes and the formation of a Service Cabinet by M. Sterghiades, Greek High Commissioner at Smyrna.

H.M.S. Iron Duke has arrived at Smyrna. It is reported that further units will arrive this afternoon.—(Reuter.)

EXAGGERATED REPORTS.

PREMATURE ANNOUNCEMENTS.

The Times Constantinople Correspondent telegraphed on Friday (delayed):—The Greek Third Corps has retired from Tonlu Punarto to the Islam Keui position covering Ushak. Such evidence as is available shows that a large part of the Corps is fighting well, but until the situation of the Second Corps, which has been driven west of Alygntash, and apparently has not regained contact with the Third Corps, is definitely known, it is impossible to predict the course of the campaign.

It is reported that a large part of Afium Karshissar has been burnt, and many Turkish inhabitants killed in consequence of a bomb outrage by Turkish civilians, which proved fatal to the Colonel of the retreating rearguard. These highlanders, who, till then, had shown excellent discipline, ran amok with deplorable consequences.

(Saturday) 2.—The Greek Army has unquestionably sustained a reverse, but its extent is unduly exaggerated, both in the Turkish Press, for which extenuating circumstances may be pleaded, and less excusably in the French Press and by the local French officials and officers, who seem to have been, to say the least, premature in the announcement of the fall of Ushak, Alashehr and Eskishehr, and the breaking up of the Greek Army.

The most important item in to-day's news is the escape of the Greek Second Army Corps from threatened envelopment, and now it is not a matter of the highest importance whether the Hellenes hold their present line, or withdraw some miles further west.

The destruction of bridges and roads by the retiring Greeks, alleged to be considerable, has, doubtless, delayed the Turkish pursuit.

STATESMEN TO BLAME.

PARIS COMMENT ON RENEWED FIGHTING.

PARIS, Sunday.

The Echo de Paris, in an article on the fighting in Asia Minor, says:—The Turkish offensive is a reply to the Greek threat to occupy Constantinople. If British statesmen had given utterance earlier to the opinion that they express to-day, peace pourparlers would have been entered into a long while ago. The Turks, glad enough to have recovered Smyrna, would have abandoned their aims in Thrace and peace would by now have been concluded.

The newspaper proceeds to ask whether the Nationalists, having obtained by force all that they could have hoped to in Asia Minor, will afterwards show themselves at all conciliatory in regard to Thrace. In conclusion, it advises British statesmen to reflect that for centuries past French Ambassadors have known how to speak in Constantinople in a language that was understood, and would be likewise understood to-day.—(Reuter.)

Yesterday evening's Temps insists on the immediate and complete evacuation of Asia Minor by the Greeks. The evacuation, it says, should be carried out and an armistice concluded between Turk and Greek before the Venice Conference assembles.

PEACE POURPARLERS.

CONFERENCE INVITATIONS.

Reuter's Correspondent in Rome says:—The Venice Correspondent of the Giornale d'Italia says that Signor Schanser, the Foreign Minister, has authorised the following statement:—"The choice of Venice for the conference on the East has been accepted by the Allied Powers. The Cabinets of Constantinople, Athens, and Angora have not yet replied officially to the invitation to the conference, but it is believed that their acceptance will not be long delayed. The conference will probably meet at the end of this month or the beginning of October."

A Paris telegram, dated yesterday, says:—

The French Government replied to-day to the British Note intimating that the British Government had requested the Italian Government to convene the Eastern conference in Venice early in this month. Great Britain asked France to transmit the necessary instructions to the French High Commission in Constantinople and to the French Minister in Athens with a view to their associating themselves with a communication to be addressed to the Angora, Athens, and Constantinople Governments.

Great Britain and France have now decided upon the text of this communication, the former having consented to certain modifications proposed by France. The French Government notifies the British Government that it is sending immediately.

ERRATIC GERMAN ECONOMICS.

FALLING OFF IN COAL DELIVERIES.

IMPERIAL SUBSIDIES INCREASED.

Reports as to Germany's economic condition are more contradictory than ever. It has been reported to the French Cabinet that German deliveries of coal are again deficient.

On the other hand, a writer in a French newspaper says that a British firm was able to borrow £2,000,000 from German banks.

The Reich Exchequer has increased its grants to necessitous persons, disabled soldiers, and dependents, while German Trade Union returns show that unemployment is virtually non-existent.

SHORT COAL DELIVERIES.

GERMAN BANKS MAKE PRIVATE LOANS.

At a meeting of the French Cabinet on Saturday, M. Le Trocquer, Minister of Public Works, announced that Germany's deliveries of coal were again showing deficiencies, and that the Reparations Commission is to be duly notified of the fact.

In a letter to the Editor of the Echo de Paris, M. A. Balande, Deputy for the Gironde, declares he knows of a case where only a few days ago a British firm wanted £2,000,000 for the construction of harbour works abroad, and secured the whole amount from German banks, "and this," the writer says, "while Germany is pleading shortage of money."

Reuter's Berlin Correspondent telegraphs:—Measures are being prepared to deal with the economic situation. Sums amounting to about 1,200,000,000 marks have been contributed by the Imperial and State Governments and local authorities for the relief of persons with private incomes, and will be available immediately for distribution. Sick and accident benefit are to be increased.

The Imperial subsidies for necessitous persons is increased from 500,000,000 marks to 1,000,000,000 marks. Supplementary allowances to men disabled in the war and to dependents of killed show an increase of 140 to 200 per cent. The Imperial contribution towards the support of sufferers from the war has been increased from 500,000,000 to 1,000,000,000 marks.

Owing to the recent strikes of printers, the banks in Dresden, Hamburg and other towns have not been able to supply the necessary paper money for the payment of wages. Many families are, consequently, in dire straits.

The Times Berlin Correspondent telegraphed yesterday:—There is still virtually no unemployment in Germany. The trade unions, with a membership of about 6,000,000, reported only 35,000 unemployed altogether in July.

SARRE AREA OCCUPATION.

PROTEST TO THE LEAGUE.

The German Government, in a Note to the League of Nations, makes a fresh protest against the presence of French troops in the Sarre district, which, it declares, is a contradiction with the terms of the Versailles Treaty, according to which order was to be maintained by the local gendarmerie.

The Note also maintains that it would be incompatible with the idea of a free plebiscite to allow troops of a Power interested in the result to be quartered in the region. The German Government regards the withdrawal of the French troops and their replacement by local gendarmes as urgently necessary to secure a free vote in the plebiscite.

Reuter's Agency adds that under the Treaty of Versailles the vote is to take place at the end of 15 years.

AMERICA'S WAR PURPOSE.

Reuter's Agency states that a correction has been received from Paris to a passage in M. Poincaré's Note to Great Britain, in reply to the Balfour Note, in which the French Premier compared the war purposes of the United States with those of France and Great Britain. The passage should read:—

"It cannot be forgotten, however, that the United States came into the war without its existence being directly threatened to defend the principles which lie at the basis of civilisation, whereas Great Britain as had France had, in addition, to safeguard not only their independence and territory, but also the life, the prosperity, and means of existence of their nationals."

The text as originally received from Paris did not contain the words "in addition."

"LIBERTY OF ACTION."

The Petit Parisien says:—The reason why the French Government decided to preserve its liberty of action were simply that the French attitude in regard to the arrangements for payment was immutable, that France could not consent to a sacrifice on the part of Belgium which would mean the establishment of a precedent, and that not until the Belgian priority has been completely paid up will France benefit effectively from German cash payments. So long as the Belgian priority has not been paid off France will get nothing.

"BARGAINING WEAPON."

FRENCH VIEW OF BALFOUR NOTE.

PARIS, Sunday.

In the course of a leading article this morning on the repayment of inter-Allied debts and the German debt to France, the Action Française says:—"The question is—would British pressure be stronger on France than on Germany, and, also, would it be stronger than French pressure on Germany?

"If we refuse to pay Great Britain until Germany pays us, which is only reasonable and just, we would like to know what steps Great Britain would take to secure payment.

"In the end she would find herself situated as we are—midway between the use of force and the abandonment of her own claims.

"The British Government is of opinion that even if it wrote off France's debts the French Government would be no more likely to cancel her claim on Germany than America hers on Great Britain. That is the British Government's trump card, the 'bargaining weapon,' which was mentioned by the Federation of British Industries in the manifesto that presumably led Mr. Lloyd George to publish the Balfour Note.

"M. Poincaré's reply shows that that policy itself would reverse the rolês. It had always been admitted until now that the Allied and Associated Powers which had suffered the horrors of war waged on their soil were to be put in a position to undertake their industrial and economic restoration.

"In 1919 Great Britain thought so little of demanding payment and introducing, by a demand for repayment, the question of the general cancellation of debts, that she regarded our own restoration as a necessary condition. The restoration of France is as necessary now as it was in 1919, and the bankruptcy of France would be as big a catastrophe as that of Germany.—(Reuter.)

WAR SACRIFICES COMPARED.

ROME, Saturday.

The Tribuna, commenting on M. Poincaré's reply to the Balfour Note, says:—"France and Italy paid the costs of the war with a sacrifice of man-power not inferior to that of Great Britain and immeasurably greater than that of the United States. They paid by suffering immense damage and invasion, from which British and American territory was free.—(Reuter.)

AMERICAN COMMENT.

NEW YORK, Friday.

The New York Times, referring to the question of reparations, says that the breathing space granted to Germany also benefits Great Britain and France, and the compromise imposes a searching test upon German sincerity and goodwill.

The Tribune says that if Belgium is satisfied, France has reason to rejoice.

The World declares that France, at a pinch, shrank from precipitating a disastrous crisis.

FROM TO-DAY'S LONDON PAPERS.

A BREATHING SPACE.

ENGLISH CREDIT AND GERMANY.

"THE TIMES" OF TO-DAY SAYS:—

It is to be hoped that Ministers on both sides of the Channel will keep before them the magnitude of the questions they have to settle, the shortness of the time for settlement, and the great issues for mankind which hang upon the solution. Our Paris message states that while Sir John Bradbury had no fewer than six or seven different combinations ready for making the German Treasury bills "acceptable"—it is not said for guaranteeing them—the combination believed to be chosen only demands in part the backing of the "D" banks. The Reichsbank gold is not even mentioned.

But the plan we are told "involves an arrangement in which Britain plays an important part." The statement is as disquieting as it is mysterious. Can it conceivably mean that our Government—or any of its members—contemplate a project by which English credit shall be used in some form to provide the guarantee for the German Treasury bills for which Germany will not pledge the gold in the Reichsbank? If Herr Stinnes and his friends have had a hint to that effect, the loudness and the unanimity with which they—and their political enemies—"are thundering the German 'No'" at once becomes intelligible. But all concerned must remember that any such operation requires the approval of the British taxpayer. He will show much meek imbecility if he consents to supply the ultimate guarantee for German reparations. He was promised at the last election that Ministers would "search the Germans' pockets." He will resent the discovery that the first step in the operation is to lend these fraudulent bankrupts in one shape or another the money from his own.

The mere existence of such reports makes full, plain, and immediate explanations imperatively necessary to relieve the public mind.

GERMAN TREASURY BONDS.

SIR JOHN BRADBURY HOPEFUL.

The Paris Correspondent of The Times writes:—Sir John Bradbury, who returned from England on Saturday night, assures me that there is now little doubt that the arrangements for the backing of the German Treasury Bonds will be completed within a few days to the satisfaction of the Berlin and Brussels Governments. The fact is that everybody looks to the British delegate to find a way. He is, perhaps, the only European financial expert capable of carrying the matter to a proper conclusion, and he was so regarded in France. He had six or seven different combinations to make the German bills acceptable all ready, and I gather that the method chosen is one which only partially demands the backing of the "D." banks. It involves an arrangement in which Great Britain plays an important part.

The only possible breakdown of the plan would arise through the recalcitrancy of Germany. Germany has so often done the wrong thing, has resisted at the wrong moment, that some little anxiety should, perhaps, be felt as to whether she will again behave foolishly and will endeavour to haggle over the terms.

THE BERLIN VIEW.

AN OFFER TO BELGIUM.

The Berlin Correspondent of The Times writes:—As at present arranged, the Government is to learn from M. Delacroix and M. Bemelmans on Wednesday what guarantees Belgium expects; what Treasury Bonds it is proposed that Germany shall issue for the next instalments of reparations. The Government will then decide upon the steps it can take. Apparently the intention is to offer Belgium certain commercial and economic advantages, and then to appeal to that country in the name of the future of Europe to accept them.

Meanwhile the German "No" is once again being thundered. The two parties of the Right are in favour of refusing the compromise altogether, on the ground that in no circumstances can the Reichsbank gold be used as deposit, and that there is no other form of guarantee available.

THE INDIAN SERVICES.

AN IMPORTANT CIRCULAR.

The Times, in a leading article dealing with the Indian Services, says:—We publish to-day the full text of the very important letter issued by the Indian Government to the local Governments in India, in reference to recruitment for the All-India Services. This circular was published last week in India, and, as our Simla Correspondent observes, it is regarded, both by Indians and by the rank and file of European officials, as an indication that the Indian Government is in favour of the rapid Indianisation of the Services and the complete cessation of European recruitment.

It is essential to the interests of the British Empire, and of India herself, that this impression should be removed at the earliest possible moment. We have no hesitation in declaring that a rapid Indianisation of the Services would be disastrous. Harm enough has been done already. Recruitment for the Services has been checked by the widespread fear that, in present conditions, there is no future in India for British Civil Servants. There is certainly serious justification for this fear. In spite of eloquent speeches in Parliament, the Government have taken very little care to maintain the security of those who might be disposed to devote their energies to service in a changing India. Those who have already given of their best to India have much to complain of in their treatment by a Government that have made a habit of bestowing favours only on those who make the loudest cry.

CANADIAN WHEAT CROP.

AN UNEXPECTED YIELD.

The Toronto Correspondent of The Times writes:—The country has been startled by a statement in the Manitoba Free Press that the Western wheat crop this year will reach 371,000,000 bushels from a total acreage of 21,471,000 acres. This estimate exceeds by 10,000,000 the famous crop of 1915. It has apparently been discovered, as harvesting proceeds and the yield per acre is more clearly established, that the crop is far better than had been expected. The previous estimates this year have varied from 297,000,000 bushels to 350,000,000.

The Free Press estimates the total yield of all grains in the West at 900,000,000 bushels.

POLISH CHIEF OF STAFF

TO VISIT ENGLAND.

The Times Correspondent at Warsaw writes:—General Sikorski, Chief of the Polish General Staff, has accepted the British invitation to visit London in the beginning of October in order to witness the training of British troops. It is understood that General Sikorski will previously attend the French military manœuvres at the end of September.

As a colonel, General Sikorski was engaged in the successful defence of Lemberg against Petlura's Ukrainian Soviet troops in 1919.

DONEGAL AMBUSH.

MOTOR DRIVER WOUNDED.

National troops were ambushed near the village of Bruckless, Co. Donegal, at an early hour on Friday morning. They were travelling in an armoured car, and something having gone wrong with its mechanism the occupants got out to repair it.

When they alighted irregulars from concealed positions opened fire on the soldiers, wounding the driver Patrick Lee in one of the hands. His comrades replied vigorously to the attack, which they repulsed. In the darkness the irregulars were able to escape.

National troops have taken over the residence in Dunkineely which was occupied by Mr. J. B. O'Donnell, Rathforker. Dunkineely is only a few miles from the scene of the ambush. Irregulars have been operating in that neighbourhood for some time, and have taken about 20 bicycles and raided the principal shops in the village.

The road between Mountcharles and Inver is blocked with felled trees. The bridge at Edridin, on the main road between Donegal and Mountcharles, which was partially blown up by irregulars some time ago has now been entirely destroyed, and rendered impassable, and the telegraph wires between Inver and Dooran road railway stations have been cut.

HEAVY FIRING IN DUBLIN.

A RAILWAY STATION ATTACKED.

SORTIE BY THE TROOPS.

IRREGULARS WOUNDED

Further attacks on military posts in Dublin took place last Saturday night. Among the places attacked were Harcourt street Station, the Four Courts Hotel, and Telephone Exchange, Crown alley. Rifle and revolver fire was heard in various other parts of the city, but, so far as can be ascertained, no casualties resulted to the troops.

Shortly after midnight a determined assault was opened on the post at Harcourt street Station, Thomson guns, bombs, and revolvers being used by the attackers, who had taken up positions at Harcourt terrace, Hatch street, and Harcourt road. A bomb was first hurled at a sentry outside the station, but fortunately missed its mark. A heavy fire was then directed at the station.

In the early stages of the attack, Captain Stokes, O.C. of the post, made a sortie against some of the attackers, who were firing from the railway line towards the platform. A brisk exchange followed. For several minutes the irregulars kept up a rapid Thompson gun fire, to which the troops replied with machine guns. The attackers were eventually beaten off, and were observed to carry away at least three of their number.

During the attack snipers were heard moving about on the roofs of houses in Harcourt street, in the vicinity of the station, and constituting a new source of terror to the already sorely tried residents.

On the South Circular road snipers were active from midnight until the early hours of the morning. Occasionally footsteps were heard at street corners, and whistles were blown at intervals. Residents of the locality say that signals seemed to have been exchanged frequently between snipers situated in the neighbourhood, as an outburst of rifle fire generally followed the sounding of a whistle.

The attacks on the outposts on the quays and at the Telephone Exchange were quickly beaten off by the troops, and no casualties have been reported.

Firing was also heard in the directions of Kingsbridge, Amiens street, Sackville street, and Broadstone Station. Patrols were quickly on the alert, and before 3 o'clock snipers in the different neighbourhoods had been silenced.

FIFTEEN ARRESTS.

HOUSE-TO-HOUSE SEARCH.

The heavy rifle and machine gun firing which took place in Dublin in the early hours of Saturday morning last, when attacks were made upon several patrols of national troops, as well as upon posts occupied by the soldiers, resulted later in the day in a systematic search of houses for the irregular snipers. Fifteen arrests were made, including that of a man who recently escaped from Wellington Barracks.

It is said that the attack on the national forces began at Kevin street, where a civilian approached a sentry on duty at the Technical Schools, and expressed a desire to join the National State forces, saying that the had served as a Lewis gunner in the British Army. He then offered the sentry a cigarette, and, pulling out a pistol, fired at point blank range. The sentry, however, ducked, and escaped injury. Other shots were fired at the sentry, and the guard opened fire, wounding the retreating man, who, however, escaped capture. Thereafter there was heavy firing from snipers throughout a wide area, and the troops, as a precaution, occupied Jacob's biscuit factory and other buildings. The area in which the arrests were subsequently effected included Bride street and Kevin street.

FIGHT AT A COTTAGE.

TWO IRREGULARS KILLED.

The following official report was issued from G.H.Q., Irish Army, on Saturday:—

"Last night a party of troops proceeded to Newpark Lodge, Stillorgan road, to make a search of the premises. Entering the house, fire was opened on them by four irregulars, one of whom was in bed. The troops returned the fire, and two of the irregulars, named Leo Murray and Rodney Murphy, were killed.

"The other two were made prisoners. One of them was slightly wounded in the back. During the encounter one of the troops was seriously wounded. A quantity of arms and grenades was discovered in possession of the irregulars."

Newpark Lodge, the residence of Mr. Walter Webster, is about three miles from Blackrock. In the early hours of Saturday morning sounds of heavy firing were heard from the direction of Newpark grounds. Shortly before 6 a.m. the police at Blackrock were informed of the discovery of two dead bodies in that neighbourhood, and on receipt of the information hurried with the Fire Brigade Ambulance to the spot. On arrival they found that the bodies had been removed by the military. Mr. Webster's residence bears traces of bullet marks, and there is evidence that a desperate encounter took place.

At about 4 o'clock in the morning national troops called at Mr. Webster's house, which is situated some distance from the road, and told him that the dead bodies of two men had been found in the grounds of his house. The lodge attached to Newpark is occupied by Mr. Webster's groom, a man named Thomas Bohon, who has been arrested by the military. It is stated that the troops surrounded the cottage or lodge in the early morning. The irregulars in the house opened a heavy fire on the military, one of the party being seriously wounded. People living on the Stillorgan-Cabinteely road say that they heard many shots in rapid succession. Rodney Murphy, one of the deceased men, resided at Dean's Grange, and the address of the other, Leo Murray, is given as 1 Charlemont avenue, Kingstown.

When discovered one of the bodies was in a sitting position and the other lying full length near a ditch. The corpses were removed to the mortuary at St. Michael's Hospital, Kingstown, where an inquest will be held to-day.

DUBLIN MURDER.

MAN TAKEN FROM BED AND SHOT

An outrage, similar in many respects to that perpetrated a few evenings previously in the neighbourhood of the Thatch, at Drumcondra, when two young men were shot dead, was committed in Dublin in the early hours of Saturday morning last.

It appears that at about 3.30 a.m. several men arrived in a motor car at No. 7 Gardiner's Place and proceeded to knock at the door, shouting to the occupants to open it quickly. The landlady asked from a window what was wanted, and was told that if she did not open it the door would be burst in. The noise aroused the occupants of neighbouring houses. The landlady admitted the men, three in number, who all carried revolvers in their hands. One of the men, the tallest of the three, proceeded to question the landlady as to the number of lodgers in the house, and asked if she had a man named Stephens there. On receiving a reply in the affirmative, the tall man said: "That is the man we want," and the raiders then searched the house.

On reaching the room, where a young man named John Joseph Stephens was sleeping, they ordered him to dress and go along with them, covering him with revolvers. Stephens asked what they wanted him for, but received no further reply than that he must be quick. He was marched from the house, still covered with revolvers, and a few moments later the party drove off in the motor car.

Some hours afterwards—at about 7 a.m.—a man named Carroll was walking along the Naas road to his work at a spot called Blackhorse Bridge, near Inchicore, when he found a young man, who subsequently proved to be Stephens, lying in a semi-conscious state on the highway bleeding from four bullet wounds. Mr. Carroll went immediately to the police station at Kilmainham, and the Corporation ambulance was soon on the scene and removed the wounded man to Steevens's Hospital.

Though very weak, Stephens was able to tell the police that he had been taken from his bed at his lodgings at about 4 o'clock that morning, and that he was taken to a motor car that was drawn up in the street not far from his house. Three armed men took him in the car and drove him to the spot where he was found. Two of the men got out of the motor car and fired four or five shots at him from their revolvers. Then, thinking that he was dead, they re-entered the car and drove away.

On examination by the House Surgeon at the hospital, it was found that Stephens, who was in a collapsed condition, had four bullet wounds in his body, including one in the region of the heart, one in the abdomen, and others in the arms. He died during the afternoon.

Stephens is stated to have been employed until recently as a porter on the Great Northern Railway, and to have been connected with the irregulars. He had only been a week lodging at Gardiner's Place, and had announced his intention of leaving Dublin on Friday last for his home at Belleek, Co. Fermanagh.

SHOTS IN KINGSTOWN HARBOUR.

TWO PERSONS WOUNDED.

At about 7 o'clock on Saturday evening shots were fired by a sentry aboard the ss. Arvonia, which is anchored in Scotsman Bay, Kingstown. The shots were fired at the occupants of a motor boat, which came close to the vessel. Two persons in the motor boat were wounded. They were immediately taken aboard a H.M. destroyer, anchored close by, where first aid was rendered, and then brought ashore, where an ambulance was in waiting, and taken to Monkstown Hospital, and treated by Dr. Weldon. Both were seriously wounded, and have since been removed to the City of Dublin Hospital. The patients' names are—Mr. Michael Garland, aged 45 years, Barnhill Camp, Howth, and William Smyth, aged 17 years, of 54 Iona road, Glasnevin. Mr. Garland was wounded in the right thigh, and the boy Smyth in both legs.

It is said that the motor boat was warned not to come close to the Arvonia by the sentry, but that the warning was not heard.

Another correspondent writes:—

The London and North Western Railway Company's steamer Avonia, under charter by the Free State Government, still lay on Saturday at anchor off Kingstown, an object of interest to watchers from shore. There seemed to be no communication between her and the shore. At about 6 o'clock in the evening firing was heard from her. The cause, as far as could be seen, was the approach of a motor boat, which was said to belong to Howth, and with about a dozen passengers on board. The latter apparently had come over to Sandycove for the swimming gala at the "Forty-foot," and was returning when the incident occurred. Her most marked feature was a large green ensign with a gold harp in the fly.

As she neared the Avonia some cheering was heard, and next the report of some shots, these latter being taken as warning signals not to approach nearer. About a dozen shots in all were heard, and the splashes in the water could be seen well clear of the boat, whose crew, however, immediately lay down for shelter, her helmsman steering her to the off-side of the destroyer Audacious, which lay near by at anchor.

Report later had it that two of her passengers were hurt, and were taken on board the destroyer, which afterwards came into harbour, the two injured persons being removed to hospital during the later evening in a local ambulance.

A WICKLOW INCIDENT.

TWO MEN WOUNDED.

At 10.15 on Friday night an exciting incident occurred at Summerhill, Wicklow, when shots were fired, and two young men, who are said to be irregulars, were wounded, one of them rather seriously.

When three of the national troops were returning to their barracks at the Coastguard Station, unarmed, they noticed two figures under a hedge. A sergeant dashed forward and ordered, "Hands up." He saw one of the figures draw a weapon, and instantly knocked it from his hand. He picked it up and again ordered, "Hands up." The second man, it is said, tried to take something from his pocket, and the sergeant fired with the captured weapon, wounding him in the left side of the neck, close to the shoulder.

The sergeant then ordered the other man to put up his hands, but he refused. Again the sergeant fired, and inflicted a flesh wound on the side of his head. Other shots were fired to attract attention of patrols, and the two men were taken to a shop for medical treatment. While the more seriously wounded of the two men was being treated his companion escaped from the house. Patrols were sent out, but failed to find him. Meanwhile, other troops brought a stretcher from the Coastguard Station and took the wounded man to the Co. Hospital. The bullet had made a clean wound through the neck. He is progressing well.

ROBBERIES AT FOXROCK.

At about midnight on Thursday five or six masked men entered the residence of Mr. J. C. Challoner, "Myrtle Lodge," Foxrock, Co. Dublin, and, having locked Mr. and Mrs. Challoner in a room, they searched the house and stole property value for about £100. They remained until 4 o'clock in the morning. Mrs. Challoner became ill as the result of shock caused by the entry of the men.

On the previous night a sum of £10 was stolen from the residence of Mrs. Halpin in the same neighbourhood.

On Saturday morning two young men wearing masks broke into Windsor Lodge, Monkstown, the residence of Mr. E. Walpole, and took away £5 in cash.

CO. GALWAY AMBUSHES.

SMART WORK BY NATIONAL TROOPS.

Two parties of national troops were ambushed near Tuam last Friday evening. Volunteer Walsh was killed, and Volunteer Cooney slightly wounded. The casualties on the irregulars' side are not known, but at one place the retreating irregulars left traces of blood, and they were seen carrying away members of their band who were either dead or wounded.

The national forces had expected and prepared for an attack at some place on the journey, and but for that fact the ambush might have taken a much heavier toll of life.

The soldiers were travelling from Mountbellew to Tuam in five motor cars, and at about three o'clock they reached Lissavalley, Barnadery. They were watchful and cautious, and although they had no information of a prepared ambush, the first party stopped their motor cars on approaching Lissavalley, where they suspected an ambush was possible. The vehicles were stopped within two feet of a land mine, to which a battery was attached, and one of the soldiers, observing the connecting wire, called on the rest to take cover, and gave word to the second party of the situation. The second party dismounted, and took up positions on both sides of the road in extended formation.

One of the irregulars was caught close to the place where the mine was set, and he surrendered. Inside the ditch another irregular was captured. Then fire was opened by the main body of the irregulars, who were concealed in and about an old ruined abbey. The national troops took cover and returned the fire, and after a brief exchange, in which the cross fire from the national troops' position proved too hot, the irregulars were observed retreating.

The troops on the left followed the irregulars for some distance, and captured the leader, Con. Fogarty. They found him lying in a potato field.

SECOND MINE.

A second mine was then discovered a short distance from where the other had been laid. The wires were cut, and Fogarty was compelled to remove the mines. The men on the left flank continued to pursue the irregulars, while the men on the right maintained their positions. The irregulars made away in the Dunmore direction. The ground favoured the retreating men owing to its undulating nature.

The pursuers returned and scouted about the district, and it was then discovered that one of their men had been killed, having been shot in the region of the heart. Volunteer Cooney was wounded in the arm. A priest was immediately sent for, and first aid was rendered to Cooney. The men captured with Fogarty are named D'Arcy and Hughes. The first party of soldiers travelled to Tuam with the prisoners, and marched by the more direct route, while the second party carried the corpse, and had to make a detour in order to avoid the broken bridges.

This party was again ambushed at seven o'clock, when they were at Castlemoyle, about four miles from Tuam. Fire was opened on them at a distance of about two hundred yards from the road, on the right-hand side. The troops took cover and replied to the attack, and after about twenty minutes' heavy firing the irregulars retreated, and the national forces advanced. They found that the irregulars had left behind them a pair of field glasses, an overcoat, and ten rounds of ammunition. Some blood stains were observed on the line of retreat. The attackers disappeared under heavy cover of furze and hazel. It is believed that they suffered several casualties.

That evening, it is stated, men were seen carrying bodies across the country.

Some important documents were found on Fogarty, and the material captured in the first ambush included two mines, one battery, two bicycles (one belonging to the post office at Ballyglunin), two coils of wire, one Mauser rifle, six rounds of ammunition, two Webleys, fully loaded, one bomb, and a heavy coat.

AUSTRIA'S SALVATION.

NEW MIDDLE-EUROPE ALLIANCE.

TRIESTE, Friday.

Signor Nitti, the ex-Premier, interviewed by a representative of the Piccolo, said that the proposal of Dr. Seipel, the Austrian Chancellor, for a Customs union between Austria and Italy was absurd. He gave it as his opinion that Austria could not live or work while bound by the Treaties of St. Germain and Versailles, and said that if he were now at the head of the Government he would propose as a remedy a territorial Customs union between all the succession States of the old Austro-Hungarian Empire—i.e., Italy, Hungary, Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland, and Jugo-Slavia—which would thus constitute a vast economic unity, a powerful zollverein, with a population of 120 millions.

Signor Nitti said that he saw no other path to safety. If it were not taken, Austria-Hungary and Poland would inevitably fall, Rumania would be impoverished, and the ports of Trieste and Fiume would fall. Such a union was in no way opposed to the Treaty of Versailles or any of the "absurd" Treaties which followed it. It was a question of a purely economic formation, a great economic territory which would see the first return to the noble tasks of peace. It would mean safety for Trieste and resurrection for Fiume.

Signor Nitti concluded—"I understand all the difficulties in the way and all the objections, but there are few things which can be done with ease. One hundred and twenty million men who, after a bloody war, practice free exchange would by that one deed alone have accomplished the greatest work of the peace. Europe is economically oppressed. She needs to breathe. To give Austria loans is, perhaps, a necessity. To help in her reconstruction is an act of humane duty; but these are experimental remedies and of no avail. The question must be faced in all its bitterness and all its complexity. The only remedy is the one I have indicated. I can see no other."—(Reuter.)

MILITARY FUNERALS.

The bodies of Lieutenant Lee, a native of Kilrush, County Clare, who died as a result of injuries received at Clondrohid, County Cork, and Sergeant Cottle, who was killed in a land mine explosion on the Cork-Fermoy road, were buried on Saturday in Glasnevin Cemetery, after Requiem Mass in the Church of Our Lady of Refuge, Rathmines. Detachments of the troops from Wellington and Portobello Barracks, under Captain O. Cullen and Lieutenant Wilson, were present, the cortège being headed by the band of the 2nd Eastern Division.

The remains were received at the cemetery by the Rev. J. Fitzgibbon, the Chaplain, who recited the last prayers, assisted by the Rev. R. Concannon and the Rev. J. Pigott, Army Chaplains. A firing party, under the charge of Sergeant-Major Rafferty, discharged their farewell volleys, and the "Last Post" was sounded.

TWO MORE CHANNEL FAILURES.

Toth, the American swimmer, entered the sea from under Shakespeare Cliff at Dover at 6.45 on Saturday evening in an attempt to reach the French coast. He swam strongly, and got through the water at a quick rate. Conditions, however, became bad, and as they got worse Mr. Jack Weidman, the swimmer's pilot, considered that it was no use going on. Toth, therefore, left the water about 5.30 yesterday morning after swimming for 11 hours, and being about six miles from the French coast. Weidman, in an interview at Dover, stated that Toth was a powerful swimmer, and, given good conditions he should succeed.

Richards also made the attempt, but he had to give up after two hours owing to pains in the chest.

PROPOSED PEACE CONFERENCE.

VIEWS IN TIPPERARY.

At the quarterly meeting of the North Tipperary County Council in Nenagh, Count P. J. O'Byrne (Chairman) presiding, a letter was read from the Roscommon County Council asking the Council to appoint delegates to meet in conference with a view to bringing the present hostilities in the country to an end.

The Chairman—That is a very important letter. To my mind it will be the only solution to the whole thing. If it is left to politics, personally I do not see where it will end. I will be glad if any gentleman here has any suggestion to make in connection with this important matter.

Mr. J. J. Hassett (Templemore)—We represent the people of North Tipperary, but with the men with the guns we do not count as much as a child in the street. If we take joint action it might be possible to bring about some settlement, and we would be only too pleased to do what we can for our country and bring this unhappy strife and bloodshed to an end. The country is going to the dogs—a country that could be smiling in full and plenty, in peace and prosperity; but at present the name of Ireland is a by-word among the nations of the earth. If we could bring about a cessation of hostilities with the gunmen we would be doing good work for Ireland. (Hear, hear.)

Professor M. Walsh (Roscrea) said that force was the persecution of the country. If it was left to force alone the problem was further than ever from an end. If they (the Council) spread the appeal broadcast amongst the people something good might come out of it. At present there seemed to be no end to the strife, and the economic life of the country was being held up indefinitely. He thought that the only way of bringing about a settlement was by the co-operation of the County Councils and Corporations, who would take joint action, without bias to either side.

The Chairman—It would come independently from the people themselves.

Mr. Hassett—We could all do what is best in our hearts, and if we fail—well, we cannot be in a worse position than we are to-day. There has been a considerable amount of blood spilt already, and there may be a possibility, with God's help, yet of good work being done for Ireland. (Hear, hear.) There are excellent men on both sides—no one can deny that; and all that is wanted is to bring them together to understand each other and end this terrible strife, which is carrying so much misery and destruction in its trail. (Hear, hear.)

After some further remarks, the Council decided to send Messrs. J. J. Hassett and J. D. Flannery (Nenagh) as delegates to represent the Council at the proposed conference.

THE REQUIEM MASS IN PARIS.

A solemn Mass of Requiem was celebrated on Tuesday morning at St. Joseph's Church, 50 Avenue Hoche, Paris, for Mr. Arthur Griffith, President of Dail Eireann, and General Michael Collins, Chairman of the Provisional Government and Commander-in-Chief of the Irish Army.

Mgr. Cerretti, Papal Nuncio, presided at the ceremony. The Mass was said by the Very Rev. Father Logan, Rector of St. Joseph's Church, and the last absolution was given by Mgr. Chaptal, Coadjutor of His Eminence Cardinal Dubois, Archbishop of Paris. After the Gospel, Rev. Father Robertson, of Australia, preached a moving panegyric of the two Irish chiefs.

In the choir, places were occupied by Mgr. Shannon, Irish Bishop of Nigeria; Mgr. Evreinoff, Private Secretary at the Nuncature; and Mgr. Crane.

The catafalque was covered with the Irish flag, and a large wreath of white roses, sent by the Irish delegation in Paris, was placed at the foot of the catafalque.

On the right of the nave were:—Lieutenant-Colonel Fontana, de la Maison Military du President de la Republique, representing M. Millerand; M. Dulignier, Consul de France, representing M. Poincaré, President du Conseil and Ministre des Affaires Etrangères.

On the left of the nave:—Mr. Vaughan O Diomeaigh, of the Irish Delegation in Paris, representing the Irish Government.

Among the personalities present were:—The Secretary of the British Embassy, representing His Excellency Lord Harding, Ambassador Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary; His Excellency M. Maklakoff, Ambassador of Russia at Paris; His Excellency M. de Giers, Russian Ambassador at Rome; the representative of the Republic of Poland, the Swiss Chargé d'Affaires, a representative of the Finnish Embassy and of the Argentine Republic, General Holmsen, Vicomte Lavillatte, and a large number of personages from diplomatic and Imperial circles.

Lord Ashbourne, representing the Irish colony in France; Mrs. J. C. Bullwinkle, Baronne Dornes, Dr. de Christian, M. and Mme. Bogoslouvsky, Mme. de Guerrero, Mrs. O'Reilly, M. Jacquelette, and a great many Irish residing in Paris.

The text of the sermon was, "Oh death where is thy sting; oh grave where is thy victory?" The preacher took the comparison with the death of Christ, the Jews mocking, "He saved others, Himself he could not save." Applying this to General Collins he said:—"He saved others; if he could have saved himself we know not, but, like Christ, he did not." The preacher concluded his sermon with the hope that, like Christ's, General Collins' and Mr. Griffith's cause would triumph in their death.

In the absence of the Ambassador, the Chargé d'Affaires, Secretaries, and Attaches of the Japanese Embassy united in sending the expression of their sympathy to the Irish Government.

DR. HALLINAN'S HOPE.

The following letter has been received by General O'Duffy, G.O.C., South-Western Command, Headquarters, Limerick:—

"Royal Marine Hotel, Kilkee,
"29/8/'22.

"MY DEAR GENERAL O'DUFFY,—I left home on Monday week, otherwise you would have had a visit from me to express to yourself personally, and, through you, the army and nation, my sorrow and sympathy on the death of General Michael Collins (R.I.P.). I have waited until the obsequies were over to rush you this line. I met him for the first and last time with you on Monday, the 14th, at the Cathedral Presbytery on the occasion of the High Mass for President Arthur Griffith. It was to me an agreeable surprise to gaze on that beaming, benevolent countenance, as different from the stern one I had pictured to myself from newspaper photographs. His manly bearing—every inch a soldier—his bright and cheering words in the midst of the tragedies by which we are surrounded, filled me with hopes as to the future of my country. It is almost heart-breaking to think now that he himself, a tower of strength as organiser, soldier, and statesman, is lost to the Irish nation at a moment when apparently she most needed his wise leadership and whole-hearted self-sacrifice; but we are in the hands of God, Who in our darkest hour has watched over the destinies of our race and nation, and Who will not fail us now, bent down, as we are, under the weight of sorrow and tragedies. Ireland is not going to perish; we are being chastened and prepared for brighter and better days. The dying words of General Collins convey their lesson, and are an inspiration to those who have succeeded to the thorny, but glorious, inheritance of Arthur Griffith and himself, that whilst carrying out their principles and policy they should follow in their footsteps and be animated by no other feeling than theirs towards their misguided fellow-countrymen, who, in defiance of the will of the Irish people, are now rending the heart of the nation.

"I congratulate you on your own escape, and shall pray God to give light and grace to the erring men to change their ways and direction, and protection to all those who are trying under such difficult conditions to bestow order and settled government on the country.

"Yours very faithfully in Christ,
"✠D. HALLINAN, Bishop of Limerick."

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

A curious case of mistaken identity occurred at Greystones on Thursday last, when the Archbishop of Dublin was interrogated by some members of the national forces under the impression that he was Mr. de Valera in clerical disguise. It appears that a son of Mr. de Valera was seen on the railway platform, and the soldiers, noticing the Archbishop about the same time walking towards the Greystones Hotel, appear to have supposed a resemblance. They approached His Grace with a view to ascertaining whether their apprehensions were correct, but were quickly made aware of their mistake. Explanations and apologies were tendered and accepted by the Archbishop.

BLACK POWDER BOMB.

REVOLVER SHOOTING IN BELFAST.

A bomb was thrown into an open yard belonging to Mrs. Toner, 26 Glenview street, Belfast, on Saturday night. The bomb, which was of the Mills pattern, was apparently filled with black powder, and the explosion did no damage.

There was considerable revolver firing on Saturday night in the East end of Belfast. Five revolver shots were fired in Short Strand about 10 o'clock, and soon afterwards some shots were fired in Thompson street, Lisbon street, and Woodstock road.

No person appears to have been injured.

BOMB IN A SHOP.

Considerable alarm was caused in York road district, Belfast, last night by a bomb explosion, which created considerable damage on the premises of Patrick Blayney, a spirit grocer. No person was, however, injured. This is the second occasion recently on which a bomb has been thrown into this establishment.

There was some revolver shooting in the Carrick Hill district of the city last night, and Mary McCann, a woman of 20, was dangerously wounded in the back.

GIRL WOUNDED.

Late last night another bomb was thrown in Belfast. It exploded in Upton street, a twelve-year-old girl named Maggie Wall being wounded by splinters in the legs. She was detained in hospital.

THE BELFAST MURDERS.

DEAD POSTMAN A NATIVE OF SLIGO.

No arrests have yet been made in connection with the two murders in Belfast last week, when a picture house attendant and a postman were shot, notwithstanding the offer of a reward of £1,000 by the Northern Government for information. It appears that the postman, whose name was George Higgins, was a native of Tubbercurry, Co. Sligo, and was a Catholic. He was married and had a small family. He came to Belfast in October, 1921, and in the course of another few weeks would have completed a year in the city, doing the duty of an auxiliary postman. His wife and family remained with his mother-in-law on the latter's farm at Tubbercurry. The shootings are generally condemned in the city.

The Belfast Telegraph prints an interview with a personal friend of Higgins, who said that prior to his coming to Belfast Higgins had been working in the Post Office at Elphin, Co. Roscommon. Life in that place, however, became unbearable and dangerous, and he was advised by his friends to go to the North where he would be quite safe.

Asked if he could suggest any motive for the crime, the narrator seemed perfectly convinced that the deceased man had been followed by enemies from the West and shadowed through the city until a favourable opportunity for the murder presented itself.

On the other hand, it is pointed out that he was found dead in the vicinity of the shipyards, which would scarcely be a suitable place to carry out such a deed of vengeance.

CATHOLIC COMMITTEE'S STATEMENT.

The Belfast Catholic Protection Committee have issued a statement concerning the speech delivered by Mr. Churchill in the House of Commons, and the outrages committed in the city since that date, in the course of which they say:—

"The outrages that have occurred in Belfast since the date of that speech, which was also the date on which the Lord Mayor's appeal was issued, should prove, what the Catholics of this city have always insisted on, that they have always suffered from acts of aggression, and that they were forced to protect themselves because protection by constituted authority was denied to them. Those outrages have been committed exclusively by 'loyalists.' They were not instigated by loyalty, but by bigotry. The later outrages synchronise with the withdrawal of the military from certain areas in the city, possibly through the desire of the Northern Government to depend on its own forces for the maintenance of law and order. It does not look as if the military can be withdrawn from those areas with safety to one section of the community. It looks as if they must be restored to duty again if peace is desired, for there are unmistakable indications that another outbreak is imminent, and Catholics are well justified in refusing to have confidence in the willingness of the forces of the Northern Government to act impartially against the real disturbers of the peace.

"We venture to suggest to the Northern Government that they cannot govern economically so strong a minority as the Catholics in the six counties without conceding to them certain rights that might induce them to co-operate with the Administration. If the Northern Government persists in its attitude that the Catholics are to have no recognised rights, it must follow that the misguided supporters of the Government will continue to assert the 'rights' which they have enjoyed without interference for so considerable a period, and which they have always interpreted as freedom to persecute and victimise Catholics on 'religious' grounds. These people cannot be expected to recognise that Catholics are entitled to fair treatment when that is denied by the Government they support. The Northern Government rules over the general body of Catholics in the six counties by the right of force. Moral recognition and co-operation are beyond the power of force to obtain. These must be withheld until guarantees are given that Parliamentary and political rights belong to the minority as well as to the majority in the six counties.

"At the risk of being wearisomely reiterative, we again draw attention to the fact that the Catholics of the six county area number more than one-third of the total population. Roughly, the numbers are 820,000 Protestants and 429,000 Catholics.

DIFFICULTIES OF IRISH GOVERNMENT.

Mr. Thomas Moles, M.P., addressing the Mountpottinger "B" Specials of the Ulster Constabulary, said that anyone who had watched the trend of public events in Northern Ireland, or in any part of Ireland, must have been struck by the extraordinary difficulties of government. A wide disregard for law and order had marked the period preceding the decline and extinction of the R.I.C., but the Royal Ulster Constabulary, which had taken the place of this force in Ulster, had enhanced its fine reputation. He did not hesitate to affirm that had there been no Ulster Specials and "A," "B," and "C" classes, the very fabric of law and order would have crumbled into dust before their eyes. Theirs was no easy task, and the Government, whose servants they were, had no easy task either.

Nowadays, said Mr. Moles, Governments were not popular anywhere. Instances of this were Russia, Germany, France, Italy, and Greece. Even Great Britain had troubles with government.

Touching on the position of the Provisional Government, he said that it had a terrible task in the restoration of law and order. He knew that the Northern Government had its critics too.

The speaker concluded by hoping that the time was not far distant when the crimes of the past would be no more than an unhappy dream. He hoped they would soon see peace reigning, when their force would be considered no longer necessary. The best for Ulster, said Mr. Moles, was yet to be. (Applause.)

THE COMING ECLIPSE.

Wollal, an outlandish and probably hitherto unheard of telegraph station in Western Australia, is about to come into prominence.

Its latitude happens to be on the line of longest totality for the coming solar eclipse, and this, coupled with the fact that Wollal's atmosphere is clear and that the sun will be high up in the heavens at the time of obscuration, has induced some eminent "Lick" and other astronomical savants to go into the wilderness, there to obtain photographic records of the great solar event.

Wollal is shown on the map as part and parcel of a great sandy desert. There are no roads, and water is obtainable only by sinking.

The final journey, sixty miles inland, will be made by bullock and donkey teams across an arid waste where the bones of more than one early explorer bleach.

NEW ZEALAND'S BUDGET POLICY.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Saturday.

Replying to criticisms of the Budget, Mr. Massey, the New Zealand Premier, answers the statement that it contained no policy by declaring that there is only one policy at present, namely, economy, retrenchment and increased production. To convince critics that the Budget economies of £5,000,000 are genuine, he quotes the special opinion of the Auditor-General to that effect. Mr. Massey indicates that a further loan will be sought for development purposes, though probably not during the current financial year.—(Reuter.)

SWEPT OVER ICE CLIFF.

LAST ATTEMPT TO CONQUER EVEREST.

(COPYRIGHT OF THE MOUNT EVEREST COMMITTEE, THROUGH "THE TIMES.")

The Mount Everest Committee communicates a statement by Mr. Mallory in regard to the third attempt made to climb the mountain when the party were overtaken by an avalanche and seven porters lost their lives.

Mr. Mallory states:—Suddenly, from the foot of an icecliff, not more than a hundred feet up the slope above us, there started a small avalanche of powdery snow. Somervell, Crawford and I were carried down in the seething mass, often buried, but never deeply, so that when the slope eased slightly and the avalanche stopped, we were able to extricate ourselves. On looking about us we saw with consternation that the head of the avalanche below us had overwhelmed two of the head parties of porters—nine men in all—and had swept them over an icecliff some fifty feet high, burying them in the ice gulf at its foot. The whole slope was not above 250 feet.

By dint of much strenuous work, in which we were seconded splendidly by the remaining porters, two of the men were recovred alive. The others were unfortunately dead by the time we recovered them.

ANOTHER RUSSIAN PLOT.

NUMEROUS ARRESTS.

BERLIN, Sunday.

On the night of August 27 numerous arrests were made amongst the higher officials of the Soviet institutions of Moscow. Eight specialists of the Supreme Council, three departmental chiefs of the Commissariat of Agriculture, and twenty-two higher officials of the Commissariats of Education, Finance, Posts and Telegraphs had been thrown into prison.

All the arrested are accused of plotting the overthrow of Bolshevist authority during the forthcoming election to the Soviets. The Che-ka (political division) alleged that it has discovered an extremely powerful body with ramifications all over Soviet Russia, which great numbers of workers, peasants, and officials had joined.

It has informed the Government that this organisation had for its object the defeat of the Communists at the October elections. In connection with the alleged discovery of this plot, a large number of arrests have been made in the factory districts.—(Times telegram.)

BOLSHEVIST PERSECUTION.

"SPREADING THE SPIRIT OF REVOLUTION."

WARSAW, Thursday.

Lemberg advices refer to the insurrectionary movement which has broken out in the Western Ukraine, with the apparent object of preventing the Soviet authorities from requisitioning the crops which have just been gathered. Some districts are said to be terrorised by small bands of insurgents, which go about the country massacring and marauding, so that officials are afraid to emerge from the towns without a strong military escort.

Depredations are also reported by a division of Red Cossacks, which has taken up its quarters in the neighbourhood of Ploskirov, for the purpose, it is explained, of spreading a real revolutionary spirit among the inhabitants. It is seizing goods from shops and co-operative societies on the ground that they are of Polish origin.

A recrudescence of persecution of the Catholic Church in the Ukraine, involving the pillaging of churches and the arrest and ill-treatment of Catholic priests, is also mentioned. At Kamieniec, Podolia, the Soviet Commissaries are alleged to have had all the churches shut up, and to have had the people who clamoured for their re-opening dispersed by cavalry.—(Reuter.)

BERLIN COMMUNISTS.

ATTACK ON THE POLICE.

BERLIN, Sunday.

Collisions occurred this afternoon at Charlottenburg, one of the western suburbs of Berlin, between youthful Communists and the police. Four persons were injured.

The demonstrators were so numerous that traffic was held up. The crowd tried to rescue a man who had been arrested and attacked the police with bottles and banner poles.

The police then made use of their arms, and on the arrival of reinforcements the crowd dispersed, but not before they had wrecked a shop.

"IN THE PUBLIC INTEREST."

U.S. COAL STRIKE ENDED.

PHILADELPHIA, Saturday.

An agreement in the American anthracite strike was reached after a conference of employers and workers had received a message from President Harding, stating that the public interest "transcended any partisan advantage you might gain by further resistance," and urging both sides to accede to the proposal of Senators Pepper and Reed, in the name of public welfare.

On Friday evening mine operators had announced that they would agree to settlement of strike if there was a public mandate for it.

WAGES REDUCTIONS.

POSITION IN THE BUILDING TRADE.

Relief is felt in all branches connected with the Dublin building trade that the threatened strike has been postponed in order to give an opportunity for further conference between employers and employés, at which the Ministry of Labour and the Provisional Government will be also represented. It is learned that at the last conferences some progress was made, and it is felt that further meetings may promote a more conciliatory frame of mind among the parties concerned. No date has yet been fixed for the resumption of these meetings. A reduction in Civil Service and Post Office workers' salaries is also pending, all postal servants in Ireland being involved. A conference of the postal workers will consider the situation at the Mansion House, Dublin, next Tuesday.

AERIAL TRAFFIC.

POOR DEMAND FOR WIDE FACILITIES.

The Air Ministry announces that traffic on the Continental air services operating to and from the London terminal aerodrome, Croydon, continued to show an expansion during the month of July. The number of machines of all nationalities arriving and departing was 711, an increase of nearly 100 machines over the previous largest monthly figure. The departures and arrival figures were, respectively, 357 and 354. The three British companies, Handley Page Transport, Ltd., the Instone Air Line, and Daimler Line, Ltd., operated 446 machines, or nearly 63 per cent. of the total number of aircraft using the aerodrome.

Passengers totalled 1,591, a figure which is considerably less than last year, but the British proportion, which totalled 1,272, is the highest number transported on British machines during any month since Continental services were inaugurated.

The total weight of goods carried shows an increase over any previous monthly period, the quantity of newspapers, mails, and general goods being 73.3 tons, of which the greater proportion was carried in British aeroplanes. The largest increase is shown in the newspaper traffic, which contributed 34.3 tons of the total.

The efficiency of British services continues to be of a high standard, the percentage of flights carried out on the London-Paris route being nearly 96 per cent.

While British companies continue to secure the greater portion of all classes of traffic, it has to be noted that the machines are still obtaining only a small proportion of the traffic required to operate on a sound commercial basis, the passenger accommodation utilised on British aircraft being only 36 per cent. of the available space, and the useful cargo capacity used only 47 per cent.

BRITISH STEAMER SUNK.

SEVEN MEN MISSING.

FLUSHING, Saturday.

The British steamer Ezardian, of Goole, Antwerp to Stockton with iron, collided this morning in a fog with the Dutch steamer Zuiderdyk at the entrance to the Scheldt.

The Ezardian sank in a few minutes. Assistance was at once rendered by Flushing pilot boats. All the crew were British.

A boat with eleven men, including the captain and all the officers, and the Belgian pilot, has come in. Two of the survivors are injured. Seven persons are missing, and it is feared that they have been drowned. It is reported that one dead body has already been brought in.—(Reuter.)

A GENERAL ELECTION.

LORD LONDONDERRY AND THE ISSUE.

The Marquis of Londonderry, speaking as President of the Durham County Unionist Association, on Saturday, said that a general election must be faced sooner or later, and later could not be more than a few months from now. That election would comprise great issues and responsibilities. It was easy to criticise the Coalition, but the fact remained that our credit at this moment stood very high, and the state of the country was infinitely preferable to the state of any other country.

Discussing the alternatives to the Coalition, Lord Londonderry described the "Wee Frees" as living in the past. The Labour Party's class policy was not likely to be successful, because it was disruptive, and had a trend in the direction of Bolshevism.

LABOUR'S CLAIM.

Speaking at Liverpool yesterday, Mr. J. R. Clynes said that the Labour Party were now called Bolshevists, Communists, and red flaggers. He asked that Labour should be judged as they asked that their opponents should be judged—by results. If Labour in the early future did not win upon its own merits it would win upon want of merit in others. Tested by the results confronting the country, Labour need have no fear.

TRADES UNION AGENDA.

At the annual demonstration of the Trades Union Congress at Southport yesterday, Mr. R. B. Walker, President of the Congress, said that if it were a question of choosing between Poplar's finance and Churchill's squandering he much preferred the former.

Mr. Smillie said that the agenda for the Congress, which opens to-day, was not of a revolutionary nature. The dukes and lords could rest in their beds secure in the knowledge that there would be no revolution this week or next.

MEXICO AND AMERICA.

ATTITUDE DEFINED.

MEXICO CITY, Friday.

President Obregon's message, delivered at the opening of the thirtieth Congress to-night, stated that Mexico's attitude was unchanged with regard to the signing of a treaty of amity and commerce before recognition had been extended by the United States, and that the development of its political and administrative plans would prove to the world that the present Government was a responsible one.

The message suggested, although it did not specifically request, the ratification by the Legislature of the recent agreements reached between Senor de la Huerta and the American Bankers' Committee regarding the Mexican external debt.

It did not recommend any amendment to Article 27 of the Mexican Constitution, which asserts the Government's title to all deposits of oil, minerals, etc.—(Reuter.)

TOBERMORY TREASURE HUNT.

A QUESTION OF NAME.

The discovery a few days ago of a massive gold badge from the sunken Spanish galleon in Tobermory Bay has reawakened hopes of greater finds in the treasure hunt which has been carried on there for many years. The badge is of ancient design and peculiar workmanship. More important discoveries may soon be announced. The progress of the work, at any rate, justifies the high expectations of those who are engaged in it.

The vessel, which has lain embedded in mud and boulders for more than three hundred years, is supposed to be named the Almirante de Florencia, but recent controversy has revived doubts expressed by the late Andrew Lang as to whether a ship so named was included in the ill-fated Spanish fleet. Lang's theory was that Almirante de Florencia was probably a mis-reading for the Almiranta (or vice-flagship) of Flores—Don Diego Flores, the commander of a squadron of the Armada. His contention was that the vessel sunk after an explosion off the coast of Mull was the San Juan Bautista of Sicily, and he supported it by quotation of a statement written in December, 1588, by Captain Morolin de Juan, Pilot General of the Armada.

The matter of the name is not of primary importance, unless it were found to be true that the San Juan Bautista was neither flagship nor vice-flagship, and was, therefore, not likely to be the bearer of Spanish treasure. The point, however, has stimulated public interest in the romantic quest.

DANCING IN DUBLIN.

The new Metropole Ballroom opens its doors on Monday next. The management have arranged with Mr. and Mrs. Leggett Byrne to personally superintend the inaugural dances. For the past 30 years Mr. and Mrs. Leggett Byrne have been engaged at most of the principal functions in the City of Dublin. They were the pioneers of children's dances and ballrooms at the Ballsbridge Fêtes, almost all of which they organised since the great "Kosmos" Fête of 1893. An excellent band has been engaged for these dances.

Mr. and Mrs. Leggett Byrne have also arranged to re-open their classes on Thursday next for children and adults. Morning and afternoon sessions will be held during the season. Children will be taught on Thursdays on Saturdays, and adults on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

IDEALS OF THE LEAGUE.

CHRISTIANITY THE MOTIVE FORCE.

BRITISH PRIMATE'S SERMON.

GENEVA, Sunday.

The Archbishop of Canterbury preached to-day at the Cathedral to the delegates of the League of Nations. Lord Balfour, the chief British delegate to the Assembly, read the Lessons at the Service.

His Grace spoke from the text: "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you" (St. Matthew vi., 33). He said that the League of Nations, though it touched only a portion of the field of Christian faith and life, can claim unhesitatingly, both for its purpose and its policy, the surest Christian sanction. "Its keynote vibrates in harmony with the keynote of the Christian faith itself, and the Christian faith lies at the core of the progressive history of mankind.

"If we consider what the League of Nations is for, what its covenant covers, what are its aims, its possibilities, its resolves, here it lies compact: 'The Kingdom of God and His righteousness.' It is nothing less than that. Promoting it, we take part in something which, in that fashion, has never before been attempted among the sons of men. We want nations loyally to conform to it as nations, not merely men as men. And that—are we not persuaded of it, or we should not be here—that can come true.

"The League of Nations is now a living body among us. We want to ensure for it a living soul. For that we must see that it is in touch not only with practical politics, but with the very highest and deepest things. 'Seek ye first the Kingdom of God.' That bids us, at the least, believe in, and avow that we believe in, and steadily act as believers in, the presence among us of a Divine Ruler, Who will guide what we may call the 'thoughtful' life of communities—that is to say, of nations as well as of individuals.

"The mission of Christian society," said his Grace, "is not exhausted. They must seek to bring about on earth the inward recognition everywhere of the great ideal, an enduring, advancing 'Kingdom of God,' absorbing the work of the generations and establishing a kingdom not made with hands, into which the nations shall bring their theories, ideals, policies, as to a touchstone, for testing their worth."

MODERN EUROPE.

PEOPLE'S WIDER INTERESTS.

He believed that in the peoples of Europe to-day, for all their divergencies and strifes, there is a higher level of average knowledge and intelligence. "A better understanding—I will not say of one another, but about one another—is beginning to prevail. There is a little, just a little, less crass ignorance in one country of what people say and think in other countries. That elementary knowledge is the outcome, in part, of the great war itself. The soil has been upturned. Right seed rightly sown could grow now more readily than ever before, and a common currency of thought, though not yet of opinion, is beginning surely to be perceptible.

"The hour is ripe for the husbandry of a League of Nations—ripe for the sowing and then for the growth of popular thoughts unattainable before. Sometimes there arises in one's brain a strange—you may deem it a fantastic—vision. You and I are accustomed to ways of habitual human intercourse undreamed of a few generations ago. Telegraphy, photography, telephony have revolutionised our modes of transmitting knowledge from man to man, and of spreading it afield. And we are trembling, I suppose, upon the verge of developments thereof vast beyond reckoning. I am wholly unfit to judge or to imagine what 'broadcasting,' to use a new phrase, may bring about in the dissemination of knowledge or of food for thought. I only know that what has already been achieved in all forms of widening human intercourse sunders us from any previous period of human life on earth.

"Has anyone, I wonder, tried to forecast, in vision, what these conditions might be made to mean for the implanting of some deep truth, some sacred message or revelation among millions, instead of hundreds, of receptive minds? If, already, in our own generation we see the growth of that wider spirit, what may we not look for in the generation now growing to manhood and womanhood?

"Within the last few weeks Paris and Cambridge, and Geneva itself, have seen huge gatherings of those who represent the popular thoughts and activities of the coming days. Do we all realise the magnitude of those happenings?

"The International Conference of Boy Scouts, held last week in Paris, had delegates from thirty different nations, representing an aggregate membership of a million and a half young men and lads. In England the corresponding Conference of Girl Guides represented half a million girls from twenty-five nations. And here, in Geneva, these were followed by the Conference in which those vast enlistments from different lands gave expression to a firm resolve.

"To what did they commit themselves, those millions who are going to bear the next generation's burden? To a firm resolve for better, worthier citizenship, and, note it, for international peace. Rightly it is said that if we are to bring about peace in the world the way will lie not so much in legislation as in the will of the peoples, and this implies education of the oncoming generation to international goodwill. All things must, of course, be visionary when you are looking ten years ahead: but this vision has substance behind it. We are witnessing, we are sharing, the birth-throes of a new day for good or ill, and unsubstantial visions take outline-shape at such an hour.

"The dawn, though red, perhaps, and lowering, is permeating the lands with a little more daylight. Take advantage of that light, such as it is. A craving—is it a mere fantasy to think so?—a craving is astir for better, healthier things, not in one country only, but in many.

EACH NATION'S TRUST.

WHY COUNCILS FAIL.

"'Remember,' a great Christian prophet of our time has said, 'remember that each nation has some ministry committed to it; that its end is not aggrandisement, but service; that even war is immeasurably better than the betrayal of its trust, the neglect of its duty to those who rightly look to it.'

"We have been watching with eager and tremulous anxiety during recent months the sustained endeavour which competent men with the keenest brains in Europe have, in complete honestly, been making to decide and define what is each nation's trust at this juncture in the post-war years—that is to say, what is its duty both to its own citizens and to the citizens of other lands, whether in war-time they were friends or foes. Many of us have been walking, as it were, on tiptoe in Europe, in the determination not to interrupt, and so, perhaps, spoil, consultations, the delicacy and difficulty of which it is impossible to exaggerate.

"We have watched, we have waited, we have prayed that the righteous and peaceable solution both for the community of nations and for its several parts may be found, and the depression of anxiety and bewilderment be relieved.

"These skilled counsellors have sought it chiefly, as in duty bound, along economic lines. Dare we say, dare we even hope, that their endeavour has been yet successful? I trow not. May it, perhaps, be true that in the present temper of States, and, therefore, of statesmen, and under the influences which so easily beset even the most honest, a solution upon lines solely economic is, in plain fact, unattainable?"

His Grace said that one heard instinctively the words of his text. The best of our statesmen realised that there is an essential need for forces other than those of logic and economics. They must seek righteousness. A nation might have to face expenditure or strain, or what is called some lowering of its prestige, not directly for its own good, but for the sake of something which is quite clearly righteous, clearly for the common good. In such case there would be no shrinking.

We dare not forget that the whole idea of the League of Nations involved—and its promoters said so—the possibility of some positive element of national sacrifice. The League was entered into sacredly. It will be, it must be, sacredly fulfilled. It may well be a matter of supremest difficulty to know where the line is to be drawn. It will perhaps tax to the uttermost the brain and vision of the foremost statesmen of different lands both in Europe and overseas. Patriotism by itself will not suffice. We need another and a deeper thing, the indwelling, permeating Spirit of God.

LEAGUE'S FIRST TASK.

MAKE WAR IMPOSSIBLE.

The Archbishop spoke at length of the ideals for which the League worked—to secure fair humane working conditions, supervision over the execution of agreements with regard to the traffic in women; also in opium and other drugs, prevention of disease, and the "mitigation of suffering throughout the world."

Finally, His Grace referred to that "to which, after all, the League of Nations owes its birth—the awful, the horrible, the devil-devised barrier of war. Vain to talk of the 'righteousness of God' while that monstrous arbitrament impends. Not till 'righteousness and peace have kissed each other' can our progress be other than a distracted, stumbling march—'The wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God.'

"You and I have lived through the greatest war-cataclysm that the world has ever known. Solemnly and whole-heartedly we register a vow before God and man that, as far as in us lies, we are going to make it impossible that such a thing shall ever again degrade God's children and deface God's earth.

"We have long known something of what war meant, but our knowledge has been blurred and diverted by a sort of haze or glamour which has surrounded warfare when viewed from a distance, and by memories of the heroism and the magnificent devotion to which it has given occasion and opportunity down the whole range of the story of the world. Not a few of the greatest deeds, the deeds of the most selfless public spirit, have been war deeds, and the prowess, far from being, as is sometimes said, merely physical or animal, has been in thousands of instances, and never more markedly than now, of the very noblest kind. From Homer to Froissart, to Shakespeare, to Walter Scott, poet, has vied with historian in glorifying, and rightly glorifying, the heroes of our fights.

"We have seen too much of what its prosaic horrors mean, and no men have spoken more emphatically on the subject than some of our foremost generals in the field. 'Its essence and a main condition of its success,' wrote a war student thirty years ago, 'is to kindle into fierce exercise among great masses of men the most destructive and combatant passions—passions as fierce and as malevolent as that with which the tiger springs upon its prey.' That is diabolical enough, but we know and realise—the world knows and realises—far more now. We have seen what it comes to when wrought on the scale and in the conditions under which those five years groaned and travailed.

"How worthless, how ignorant, how heartless sounds to-day the easy talk we can remember in the pre-war days upon the lips of some, that a war would not be a bad thing for us after all, that a little blood-letting is all to the good, and so on. Good God! Will anybody so speak now? We have seen with our own eyes, we have heard in our own homes and hospitals its unspeakable, its illimitable horrors. And deliberately we say that, God helping us, there shall be no 'next time.' The foremost thinkers and statesmen and rulers now alive in Christendom have thrown their strength into devising plans—by tribunals, by delays, by pledges, by conditions, by sanctions—to make the thing impossible.

"And meantime we may surely say that militarism has fashioned its own coffin. We are here to clinch the nails. Every thinking man who is worthy of the name, whatever his creed, whatever his nationality, is with us in the resolve. Civilised humanity—yea, and uncivilised—is on our side. It is, or ought to be, unthinkable that we fail."

You will certainly sleep well to-night

—if you buy a tin of Sanatogen on your way home, and take two teaspoonsful (in hot milk or cocoa, etc.) about five minutes before going to bed.

There is no narcotic action — for Sanatogen contains no drugs — but it soon induces a feeling of nervous serenity, repose and gastric comfort, which are the natural concomitants of healthy sleep.

"My sleep is fifty per cent. better since I took Sanatogen," writes: that grand old naturalist Mr. John Burroughs. And Mr. Horace Hazeltine, the well-known novelist, says, "I sleep long and refreshingly, and wake each morning to the fresh joy of living."

But Sanatogen does more than help you to sleep — much more! Taken regularly, it increases the vitality of your blood and nerve cells — tones up the stomach, bowels, and digestive organs—improves your general nutrition — and invigorates the brain and will-power to healthy activity by natural, physiological means.

SANATOGEN

(The True Tonic-Food)

Don't let your health be undermined by sleeplessness a night longer, but go to the nearest chemists now, and buy a tin of Sanatogen. See that you get genuine Sanatogen—from 2/3 to 10/9 per tin—made by Genatosan, Ltd., Loughborough.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

AGENDA FOR THE THIRD SESSION.

The agenda of the third session of the Assembly of the League of Nations, which meets at Geneva to-day, is as follows:—

1. Election of the Committee to report on the credentials of delegates.
2. Election of the President and six Vice-Presidents.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

WOMEN'S TRAINING IN IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—You were good enough to find space in your columns for a letter when the Central Committee on Women's Training and Employment initiated their scheme for giving free grants for the training of Irish girls, whose earning capacity or opportunities had been injuriously affected as a result of conditions arising out of the war. The funds having become exhausted, the Committee were regretfully compelled to refuse to consider any application after March last.

It has, however, been gratifying to the Committee and will, we think, be of interest to your readers to know that, during the last two years, the sum of £14,079 3s. 11d. has already been paid on behalf of those Irish girls who received grants, while there are further commitments amounting to over £7,000 for those who have not yet completed the course given to them, or, for one reason or another, have not yet started their training. Thus training grants were given to about 370 girls. A further sum of approximately £10,000 has been expended on the training of unemployed women and girls in homecraft and allied subjects, with the object of qualifying them for domestic employment.—Yours, etc.,

E. M. FINGALL, President;
CAROLINE S. ARNOTT, Vice-President;
ADELINE HILL TICKELL, Secretary,
Central Committee on Women's Training and Employment.

Ministry of Labour, 21 Parliament street, Dublin, September 2nd, 1922.

THE COST OF LIVING.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I have read your article dealing with the cost of living in Dublin. No article that I have seen deals with an important factor—the price of stout in Dublin. In Galway and Longford recently I purchased Guinness's stout at 6d. per bottle. In Dublin it is 8d. The Galway trader pays freight from Dublin and sells at 2d. less! Dublin traders send bottled stout to private houses at 6d. and charge 8d. if it is consumed at the counter. Why? All this is against the workingman; and, if Dublin publicans were fair, we might not have the present high rates of wages that are killing industry or any hope of development. The price of draught stout to Galway consumers is 9d. per pint. In Dublin it is a shilling.—Yours, etc.,
"F. R."

A WIRELESS ASSOCIATION FOR IRELAND.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—It has been suggested by some of those interested in the development of wireless telegraphy and telephony that the formation of an Irish Wireless Association would serve a valuable purpose. Interest in "broadcasting" is rapidly growing, and the increasing importance of radio-telephony as a social and commercial factor is now almost universally recognised. The chief function of such an association would be the dissemination of accurate information respecting the progress of this branch of science among its members; but its more essential purpose would be to serve as a link between scattered clubs, societies, and other institutions on the one hand, and the authorities responsible for the control of wireless activities on the other.

Such an association would be in a position to represent to the authorities the views of amateurs and, it is hoped, to assist in securing the observation of such regulations as it may be necessary to form for the control of their activities. It is not unreasonable to expect that, while wireless activity on the part of amateurs may not be permitted until order has been restored in the country, the authorities would, nevertheless, view with favour any steps taken in the above direction.

It is proposed to convene a preliminary meeting with a view to forming an association at an early date, and it is desired that representatives of existing clubs and societies, and other interested persons, more especially those who would be willing to form local clubs or societies in various districts, should communicate at once with the undersigned.—Yours, etc.,

H. LINTON FLETCHER.

CIVIL SERVICE PLUMS.

DEMONSTRATION IN LONDON.

On Saturday afternoon a demonstration of civil servants, organised by the Civil Service Clerical Association, was held in Trafalgar square, London, to protest against the refusal of the Government to grant an inquiry into the commencing rates of salary of Lytton Committee entrants to the permanent service. The men and women affected number some 5,000, being employed in different departments of the State.

Mr. W. Chambers (Chairman) said that in the Civil Service, as in other classes, the number of plums available were few and far between. The position of the rank and file of civil servants was far worse than in the commercial world. They were actually in a worse position than farm labourers, who had in some cases a better wage.

A resolution pressing the Government to give an inquiry was passed.

At the close of the meeting a deputation went to 10 Downing street.

THE BLUE PETER.

The September-October issue of "Blue Peter" contains, among other items, an exclusive literary article from the pen of Mr. Richard Curle on "Joseph Conrad in the East," the two-fold purpose of which is to discover to what extent Conrad's wanderings in the East are actually reflected in his writings, and to find out how far in his books he has truly caught the spirit of the Orient. The writer deals with his subject in an interesting and able manner that will be appreciated by his readers. Other contributors to this number are Mrs. Moeller, M. H. Hirst, Edward Vickers, Mrs. Robertson Scott, and F. D. Grierson.

MARKS LOSE AN EARLY IMPROVEMENT.

Monetary conditions were quite comfortable on Saturday owing to Friday's disbursements and the usual lack of business on a Saturday. Short loans were freely offered at 1¾ down to 1½ p.c., but 2 p.c. was paid for advances till Tuesday. Old loans and weekly fixtures were renewed at 1¾ p.c.

There was very little doing in discounts, and although efforts were made to quote rates lower to conform to the easier state of money, this was rendered difficult by the absence of buyers. The rate for three months' fine bills was practically the same at 2 11/16 to 2⅝ p.c., and there were sellers of the new Treasuries at 2½ p.c. Some Octobers were taken at 2⅝ p.c.

The "Tap" rate for additional Treasury Bills to be on sale at the Bank of England this week has been raised from 2¼ to 2½ p.c.

Silver was quoted ⅛d. higher at 35½d. per ounce for both spot and forward delivery owing to some buying on account of China.

The foreign exchanges were steadier, with dealings on a much smaller scale. Marks opened better at just under 5,000 to the £, but subsequently reacted to 5,800, or practically the same as at the close on Friday. Francs improved to 57.08, Belgian francs being 60.25, and Italian lire 101⅛. Sterling further strengthened to 4.46⅝dol., but otherwise there was very little movement in rates. The Board declared an interim dividend for the past half-year at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum, or 12/- per share (£10 paid), less income tax, which was payable on and after Saturday, the 29th July. FINANCIAL PARAGRAPHS.

The settlement of the pre-war account removes a long standing source of weakness, which became more pressing as the end approached. Now that the uncertainty surrounding the reparations position is removed (says the Sunday Times) a further recovery in markets may be confidently expected. The Continental position, however, will require careful watching. The set-back in Gilt-edges provides an opportunity for getting cheap Stock. Money may become dearer, and the prices of securities, such as Consols and Local Loans, which are entirely dependent upon the value of money may fall further, but War Loan Fives are clearly a cheap purchase at par whether they are repaid in 1929 or in 1947, and the various National War Bonds should be worth buying when obtainable below redemption prices, including premiums. The movements in Textiles is still worth following, for the trade outlook is brighter than for some time past. Courtaulds, Coats, Fine Cotton Spinners, and Joshua Hoyles are among the soundest selections.

It is announced that the definitive certificates for Mexican Eagle 7 per cent. Preference Shares, issued a few months ago, will be ready for delivery on and after October 2, in exchange for fully-paid letters of acceptance or scrip certificates. The exchange will be made at the head office of the London Joint City and Midland Bank, or may be effected through any branch. Holders are strongly advised to adopt this course, or to hand their documents to their own bankers for the purpose. Under no circumstances should letters of acceptance or scrip certificates be sent by post.

The recovery which has occurred in the last few days in the prices of French Railway Bonds has brought down the yields substantially, but they are still sufficiently good to look attractive, as the following table shows. No allowance is made for profit on redemption:—

	Price.	Yield.
Midi 6 p.c.	82	£7 6 0
Nord 6 p.c.	85	£7 1 6
Orleans 6 p.c.	82	£7 6 0

FINANCE AND TRADE.

THE SHELL IN CALIFORNIA.

In view of the strong opposition which was shown by Californian stockholders in the important Union Oil Company of California to the recent attempt of the Shell group to obtain a larger interest in their company, it is interesting to note (says the Investors' Chronicle) that feeling recently appears to have changed somewhat in this connection. Since Sir Henry Deterding's visit to California more amicable relations have prevailed between the Shell Co of California and the Union Oil of California; and the Union Company, for example, is assisting the Shell by transporting the latter's production of some 12,000 barrels daily at Signal Hill, California, to the Shell refinery at Martinez. From the Shell point of view this change appears highly satisfactory, for one of the principal objects of the recent large acquisitions by the group in America was the eventual attainment of control of the Union of California. For this purpose the Shell Union Oil Corporation, controlled by the Shell, was formed, and for the six months ended June last that corporation reports net profits of $5,305,900, after allowing for depreciation, but before the deduction of Federal taxes. The present production of the corporation exceeds 68,000 barrels daily, being an increase of over 26,000 barrels since the beginning of the year. The refining capacity of 48,000 barrels is being increased. These figures include mid-Continent as well as California operations. The combined interests control 792 miles of pipelines, and on the Pacific coast complete marketing facilities. The net profits of the two groups before the merger took place were $4,840,400 in 1921, after meeting all charges. This compares with $13,312,000 for 1920.

ENGLISH MARGARINE WORKS.

This company, closely associated with Lovell and Christmas, has made a remarkable recovery in the year to April 1 last. The accounts show a profit of £106,595, after registering a loss of £48,352 for the preceding year. Deducting this debit, and after placing £10,000 to depreciation of buildings and plant, there is a balance of £48,242. The Preference dividend was only paid for six months in the previous year (writes the Stock Exchange Gazette), and the eighteen months' Preference dividend takes £36,752, and, after paying £2,500 directors' fees, there will be £9,240 to carry forward. There is still no dividend on the £999,990 Ordinary capital, but it is something to see the interest on £500,000 Preference Shares covered in these days of trade uncertainties. The bank overdraft of £23,965 has been paid off, and creditors are reduced from £286,830 to £29,369. At the same time debts to the company have increased from £189,878 to £252,708, while stock-in-trade is reduced from £320,470 to £88,649. Investments are down from £128,755 to £38,828, while cash is slightly increased from £48,352 to £49,825. Fixed assets have increased from £317,970 to £346,355; goodwill remains at £300,000. The 7 per cent. Participating Preference Shares are now a more comfortable holding than they were a year ago, and at 15s. 6d. they seem an attractive purchase, yielding 9 per cent.

AFRICAN AND EASTERN TRADE CORPORATION.

In some quarters surprise has been expressed that the Ordinary Shares of the African and Eastern Trade Corporation have been relatively firm at 27s. 6d. since the issue of the past year's accounts, which show a loss of £1,794,798, compared with a profit of £854,499 for the previous year. The main reason for the steadiness of the market is (says Truth) that a substantial bear account exists, as the shares have come down from 5½ since 1920. Moreover, the company has a large claim outstanding for refund of E.P.D., and has made liberal provision for depreciation of stocks and investments. By appropriating £1,750,000 from reserve and utilising part of the credit balance of £207,593 brought in, the directors are able to wipe out the year's loss and pay the Preference dividend, but no distribution is possible on the Ordinary Shares, which received 17½ per cent. in the previous year. Investments in allied concerns have been written down by £1,500,000 out of reserves, which now amount to £3,729,508, against £6,914,358 a year ago. Stocks of goods are valued at £1,945,908, against £2,736,306, and investments in allied companies at £6,904,960, compared with £8,293,214. Sundry debtors are slightly higher at £2,891,308, and sundry creditors and other liabilities have increased from £1,619,836 to £3,364,602, while cash has fallen from £393,178 to £159,260. Provision has been made for any deficiency in forward commitments, and the company is amply prepared to take advantage of any trade revival. The directors state that prospects are already brighter.

COMPANY MEETINGS.

GOODLASS, WALL AND COMPANY, LIMITED, LIVERPOOL.

The third annual general meeting of shareholders of the above Company was held at the Law Association Rooms, Cook street, Liverpool, on Thursday, 31st August, 1922.

Mr. John Byrne, Chairman of the Company, presided, and was supported by the directors and a representative gathering of the shareholders.

The directors' report and accounts and audited balance sheet were unanimously adopted. A dividend of 6¼ p.c., less tax, upon the Ord. shares was declared, and warrants will be posted on 7th September next. The board were congratulated by all present on being able to pay such a dividend under the trying conditions which had prevailed during the financial year.

The chairman, in his remarks, drew attention to the taxation which this Company, like all others, had been subjected to, and pointed out that it was the duty of every individual shareholder, in his personal capacity, to make a protest against such a heavy burden being imposed upon industry. The chairman, continuing, said that with relief in this direction, he was confident that the trade of the country, both for home and export, would materially improve.

The proceedings, which only occupied twenty minutes, closed with a hearty vote of thanks to the board and management for the excellent results obtained.

COPESTAKE, CRAMPTON, AND COMPANY.

Mr. Alfred Crampton, presiding at Cannon street Hotel, E.C., at the second ordinary general meeting of Copestake, Crampton and Co., Ltd., having referred to the loss the company had sustained by the death of their vice-chairman, Mr. Percy Crampton, said it was a matter of great regret to the board that they were again unable to declare a dividend. Shareholders would recognise that the period under review was marked by universal depression, and there had also been a further and serious fall in values. The Government had refused, on the ground of change of ownership, to allow the company's claim in regard to excess profits duty. Had that been allowed it would not only have wiped out the adverse balance, but have left something to carry forward. They had, however, allowed the vendors' claim, amounting to £21,833, and that, in accordance with the undertaking given last year, had been brought into the profit and loss account, the debit balance being now reduced to £33,431. Trade showed signs of improvement and markets were more stabilised, and the directors hoped there would be an increase in sales without losses, owing to falling prices, which had been so severe since the company started. The report was agreed to, and a vote of thanks was accorded the directors and staff for their conduct of the business during a trying period.

WEST AFRICAN EXPORT DUTIES.

At the meeting of the Eastern and African Trade Corporation's shareholders in Liverpool, Mr. J. H. Batty, the chairman, mentioned that the expected E.P.D. refund should be £700,000, a welcome windfall. In the matter of profits, 1922 will, he anticipated, prove a lean year, though sensibly better than 1921, when, in fact, trade conditions were at their worst. Conditions are improving. All the same, the fact Mr. Batty insisted upon, that political factors overshadow economic factors, is one that needs to be clearly grasped. The foundation of prosperous trade is security, for security means confidence, and confidence induces enterprise. Not only has there been lessened security, with its blighting effects upon demand, and through demand upon prices, but there has been, coincidently, an increase of taxation beyond precedent. In the case of the West African Colonies the upward bound in official expenditure led to the imposition of the export duties. The duties were imposed when prices of produce were at the "boom" level, and it was apparently thought that "boom" prices had come to stay. Now that prices have fallen and the return to native producers is the market value, less the export duty, the deduction of the duty is a direct discouragement of production. The export duties ought to go, and if retrenchments in expenditure are necessary to that end, retrenchments must be made. In the interests of the native population, as well as in the interests of trade, it is to be hoped the African and Eastern Trade Corporation will not cease to press for abolition.

ULSTER SAVINGS CERTIFICATES.

During the week ending 26th August, 15,260 Ulster Savings Certificates have been sold, which brings the total sales to date up to £277 6s. 6d., representing an investment of £173,510.

The body of Colonel Charles Johnston, of Little Offley, Hitchen, who was drowned at Widemoth Sands, on August 27th, while bathing with some naval officers from Devonport, was recovered yesterday near Bude, Cornwall, three miles from the scene of the accident.

LIVERPOOL, Saturday.—WHEAT—Higher quotations from America caused some covering in speculative positions by "shorts" during early trading and prices improved slightly despite forecast of heavy Canadian crop and large "Bradstreet's" shipments for past week. The improvement, however, was not maintained, final rates being barely as good as last night. PROVISIONS.

LIVERPOOL, Saturday.—BACON—Chicago cables showed a further improvement in both live hogs and speculative products, and practically no imports were entered here, but the demand generally was of only a moderate consumptive character, and no quotable alteration was made in values of any selection, though holders in some cases were easier to approach. (REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.)

NEW YORK, Saturday.

The New York and New Orleans Cotton Exchanges have been closed to-day. The New York coffee and sugar markets also remain closed. All the American markets will be closed on Monday for Labour Day. Stocks opened irregular. The threat of a general strike on account of the Government's injunction caused hesitation generally, but the rise was persisted in for selected shares, mostly specialities; then more stability was established in sympathy with a rise in Industrials. The market closed steady.

DUBLIN SHEEP SALE.

Messrs. Gavin Low, Ltd., held their fifty-fourth annual store sheep sale in the Dublin Cattle Market on Friday last, when close on 4,000 sheep were penned. Owing to the dislocation of the different railway services this number fell far short of the usual offerings at this season's sale, and the pens allotted to many of the usual consigners who had entries were consequently empty. A sharp, steady trade was experienced throughout, and a complete clearance was effected. Cheviot ewes especially came in for most attention. Galway ewes made from 81/- to 55/-; Cheviot ewes from 65/- to 50/-; black-faced horny ewes from 42/- to 29/-; lambs from 43/6 to 29/-.

Next sale in Dublin Cattle Market on Friday, 15th inst.

CO-OPERATION NECESSARY.

In a lecture on "Democratic Industrialism," delivered under the auspices of the Irish Co-operative Manufacturing Society, at 40 Upper Sackville street, Dublin, last night, Mr. Andrew E. Malone said that Ireland was at the cross roads of its destiny, and that what they thought and did that day would of necessity be the basis of their future economic system. Throughout the world they saw Labour and Capital in conflict—Labour discontent and unhappy because it did not share, to the extent it thought possible, the fruits of its work, and Capital restless because of world insecurity, and very much perturbed because of the attitude of Labour. In any well ordered industrial system these two forces should work in harmony, if the best possible results were to be obtained.

As a result of historical events Capital was dominant, and, because of many things, the larger section of the human race was in poverty-stricken subjection; while a few reaped all the benefits of economic effort. Ireland had an opportunity of benefiting from the experience of this economic history of the world. They could see where the mistakes had been made, and do their utmost to avoid similar errors. They had an opportunity unique in the history of nations, inasmuch as they should set out to reconstruct, and practically recreate, an economic system. That being so they should take heed of the lessons of economic history, and endeavour to bring the relations of the economic forces of Capital and Labour into that state of harmony which would produce the maximum output, and give the greatest possible happiness to the community.

The method which had been adopted in the Irish Co-operative Clothing Manufacturing Society was one which harmonised the interests of the producer and the consumer, from both sections of which it drew its capital, and the worker was not a worker only, but a part proprietor in the concern in which he was employed. That was the method upon which a democratic industrial system could be built up, and it was the method which would give the people of Ireland complete control of their own industries for the benefit of themselves.

CHURCH NOTES.

Architects propose to commemorate the approaching bicentenary of Christopher Wren—the famous architect of St. Paul's—by raising a fund towards the £100,000 necessary for the essential work of repair on the piers and arches supporting the great dome. The allied societies of the R.I.B.A. outside London have been invited to open subscription lists in their own districts, and to forward collectively to the R.I.B.A. the amounts so received.

Under the shadow of the little Church at Sandringham lie at rest many of His Majesty's servants. In almost every case gravestones have been put up to their memory either by King Edward VII. or King George. There lies Thomas Amos, the King's shepherd. A Mr. Macdonald was apparently a peacemaker in the Royal household, for "Blessed are the peacemakers" is the text chosen by King Edward himself. On a tombstone erected to the memory of a coachman the text is engraved, "The King's favour is toward a wise servant."

The late Lord Northcliffe was a warm admirer and personal friend of General Booth, of the Salvation Army. At a select dinner party on board an ocean liner the Salvation Army was mentioned, and one of Lord Northcliffe's friends suggested a motive that was not altogether worthy the Army's founder. Lord Northcliffe clicked his glass with his knife, and called the speaker to order with "Gentlemen, all the religion I have I owe to General Booth, and I will not permit anything derogatory, either to him or to his Army, to be said in my presence." A few days before leaving England for Washington, as chairman of the British War Mission, he called upon the General at International Headquarters. After a very familiar talk, during which the General spoke of eternal things, as the two shook hands hands, Lord Northcliffe said, "Well, General, you know I sometimes think I ought to have been one of your captains."

St. Peter's Church, Portland, which has just been celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of its consecration, was built by convicts. The mosaic border round the porch and the pavement of the church were the work of Constance Kent and other women brought from Woking Prison for this task. The mosaic in the reredos is also the work of a convict. Several beautiful examples of wood-carving are to be seen, on one of which, a prie-dieu, the craftsman has placed his name and the broad arrow. The pulpit, carved of a solid block of Portland stone, was the work of Irish Fenian prisoners.

The plans for the centenary celebration of the Colonial and Continental Church Society next June include an Overseas Exhibition in the Horticultural Hall, Westminster, relating to Canada, Australia, and East Africa, in which countries the Society is actively at work, particularly among the British settlers in their first years of struggle, isolation, and often poverty and hardship. It is hoped to raise a centenary fund of £100,000.

PRESENTATION TO THE REV. CANON PIKE.

On Thursday last the parishioners of the United Parishes of Clonoulty and Ardmayle assembled in the Schoolhouse, Clonoulty, to present an address and silver tea and coffee service to the Rev. Canon and Mrs. Pike as a small token of their esteem and regard for long and faithful services. Canon Pike laboured for twenty-one years in Clonoulty Parish, during which time he was not only a faithful pastor, but a friend to all. He has been appointed to Thurles Parish, on the retirement of the Ven Archdeacon Wilson. The presentation was made on behalf of the two parishes by Mr. R. Ll. Pennefather, Marlow. Mrs. Pennefather and other ladies provided tea for the party.

DUBLIN WEEKLY TRADE REPORT.

The expansion in production in cross-Channel industrial centres develops slowly, but Yorkshire appears to be the most progressive district. Raw wool markets are firm, and London sales of Colonial opening 4th inst. are expected to show some hardening on fine grades. Australian wool trade propose to stabilise price of crossbred fleece by rationing supplies at sales. They also favour continuing control of the quantities of wool allotted to monthly auctions. Irish wool is averaging 7d. to 8d. and 9½d. per lb. With regard to local trade generally the situation being still full of perplexities and difficulty in transportation the mercantile community find business tedious and uncertain to get through with.

CLOSED CONSULATE.

U.S. TAKES LENIENT VIEW.

NEW YORK, Saturday.

The Associated Press publishes the following from its Washington Correspondent:—The Government is not convinced of misconduct on the part of its Consular officials in Newcastle, and until a proper investigation is made no efforts will be made to re-open the Consulate.

It is learned that Mr. Harding has been interesting himself in the case, and while he recognises that additional evidence may be produced as the investigation continues, he believes that nothing has developed thus far to reflect discredit on the Consular officials concerned.

The State Department officials say that there is no information in their possession on which a "disciplining" of the Newcastle Consular officials would be justified. The wish was expressed at the White House that Americans would interest themselves in the American Marine to the extent that persons belonging to other nations are interested in the shipping of their own countries. This is accepted in some official quarters as indicating a tendency on the part of the officials to approve, rather than disapprove, the action of the Newcastle Consuls.

When the British allegation was received charging the Consular officials with improperly persuading travellers to use American ships, the Government requested that their exequaturs should not be cancelled prior to investigation. The evidence adduced did not satisfy the officials, who again requested the Foreign Office to withhold its final action, and the officials were surprised when they learned that the exequaturs had been cancelled.

Mr. Harvey has been fully advised of the situation, and has also been informed that the policy of the Government will be to keep the Consulate closed until the investigation now progressing has been concluded and the Government is able to select new Consular officials.—(Reuter.)

According to the Boersen Courier (Berlin) negotiations began on Saturday in Berlin between Mr. Leslie Urquhart, M. Krassin and M. Stomomiakoff, the Chief of the Russian Commercial Mission in Berlin.
